THE SIEGE OF VICKSBURG.

Advices from General Grant's Army to the 31st ult.

EVERYTHING PROGRESSING WELL

The Siege Operations Being Energetically Pushed Forward.

Preparations for Mining Some of the Principal Rebel Works.

One Hundred and Fifty Cannon Playing Upon the City.

The Rebel Force Reported to be 18,000 Effective Men.

MOVEMENTS OF JOE JOHNSTON AND LORING.

WASHINGTON, Thursday, June 4.

Unofficial, but reliable dispatches received here to-day from our army, dated near Vicksburgh, May 31, represent no material change in affairs. There had been no fighting for several days, but the siege works were being energetically pushed forward. Our army is in good condition and fine spirits.

WASHINGTON, Thursday, June 4—Midnight.

A telegram was received to-night extracted from the Richmond Sentinel, June 3, as follows:

"JACKSON, Monday, June 1.

Gen. GRANT demanded the surrender of Vicksburgh on Thursday, giving three days to Gen. PEMBERTON to consider the demand. Gen. PEMBERTON replied that he did not want fifteen minutes, and the troops would die in the trenches before they would surrender. The enemy's gunboats fire heavy shot at the city. Port Hudson is invested."

The gentleman forwarding this dispatch to the Government adds: "There is nothing in the Richmond Enquirer of the 4th."

Dispatches have been received directly from Gen. GRANT's army of dates respectively 28th, 29th, 30th, and 31st, and while they mention the progress of the siege, they say nothing of any assault since the 21st and 22d, nor of any battle since the 25th, which last was not very heavy. Our troops are officially represented in good health, spirits and condition.

Up to the 31st of May the siege of Vicksburgh was progressing with reasonable satisfaction. There was not then any immediate pressure on GRANT's rear; and Gen. BANKS had Port Hudson invested.

THE SITUATION ON SATURDAY LAST.

PHILADELPHIA, Thursday, June 4.

The Bulletin, of this City, has the following special dispatch:

CINCINNATI, Thursday, June 4.

Our direct advices from Vicksburgh are to the 20th of May.

For several days previous, quiet prevailed all along our line, broken only by occasional cannonading.

The Cincinnati Commercial has a dispatch dated the 30th, saying:

"Spades are once more trumps. We are erecting earthworks to protect men, and are mining to blow the face out of one or two of the rebel forts that are unapproachable otherwise. The idea of carrying the place by storm seems to be abandoned. The safer and surer plan of starving Gen. PEMBERTON into submission now finds favor everywhere.

A deserter came into our lines this morning. He represents that he was sent by Gen. PEMBERTON to communicate verbally with Gens. JOHNSTON and LORING. The former is supposed to be between the Big Black River and Jackson. The latter was near Port Gibson. He represents affairs in the city as growing desperate. About 18,000 effective men are there, two-thirds of whom are kept on the fortifications night and day, and not allowed to leave an instant on any pretext. Gens. PEMBERTON, LEE, REYNOLDS, STEVENSON and others are in the city. Most of the sick left the city before its investment. Those who remain have excavated caves, and remain in them night and day."

Valuable merchandise in the city is also stored in caves from fear of conflagration. The poor are generally in their houses. Over one hundred women and children have been killed by our bombardment. The gunboats inflict no injury on the city.

Gen. PEMBERTON believed his rations would hold out 31 days; but urged JOHNSTON to come to his relief within 10 days at the furthest.

Cavalry horses have been turned loose and driven toward our lines, owing to the lack of forage. There was ammunition enough to last 60 days, with the single exception of gun-caps—these were scarce.

All confidently expected superhuman efforts to be made by those outside to raise the siege. They consider Vicksburgh the strongest place in the Confederacy.

Gen. BLAIR has met no enemy in force, and the reports of JOHNSTON being near are disbelieved.

A cavalry reconnoissance, three days ago, discovered a small force, and had one man killed and four wounded.

Gen. BANKS, with reinforcements, is reported near here, but, like many other rumors, it may have little foundation in fact.

This morning the heaviest cannonading of the siege was kept up, without intermission, for nearly three hours.

New batteries have lately been put in position, and 150 guns are playing on the city.

At daylight this morning the firing was rapid beyond belief. The reports of the guns along the whole line averaged one per second for minutes together.

The roar of the heavy siege guns was awful, and the earth was shaken by the concussion.

The roads and camps were uncommonly dusty.

Our wounded are being removed to hospital-boats in large numbers and transported to Memphis.

REPORTS FROM MEMPHIS.

Dispatch to the Chicago Tribune.

MEMPHIS, Monday, June 1.

Our army is in fine health and spirits, and in a situation to starve the rebels out if they do not surrender. The casualties are few, considering the occurrences of the firing of the last fifty-two hours. The rebels seem determined to hold the city to the last, and our boys ask leave to make a desperate charge at all points. Our base of supplies is now JOHNSTON's plantation, on the Yazoo, and long trains are coming in. GRANT says he has all the troops he can use to advantage, and feels perfectly confident of taking the city. The rebels may concentrate and cut through our lines, but if they do, certain destruction awaits them.

INCIDENTS OF THE SIEGE.

Dispatches to the Western papers furnish some interesting incidents of the siege, which we extract:

Persons who have been to De Soto Point say that with a glass they cannot see a single human being in Vicksburgh, save soldiers.

Our men capture horses daily, belonging to rebel troops. Several of our men have been captured by the rebels, but they have been paroled immediately, from a scarcity of food.

During the night on Friday, a number of soldiers from an Iowa regiment scaled the walls of the fort northwest of the city, and held it for six hours, when reinforcements not coming up, they were captured by the Confederates, but were soon paroled. That day, during the bombardment, a shell fell upon the jail in Vicksburgh, demolishing the building.

The rebels are limited in the amount of their stores—not more than enough (issuing half rations) to subsist for thirty days.

The deserters say there are about 30,000 soldiers in Vicksburgh. They seem to entertain no doubt of the speedy surrender of the stronghold to GRANT and his troops.

Lieut.-Col. H.C. WARTMOTH, of Gen. MCCLERNAND's Staff, relates an interesting incident of the fight of the 22d ult., to about this effect:

Sergeant JOSEPH GRIFFITH, of Company I, Twenty-second Iowa, took eleven men and with them drove a squad of rebel gunners from an earthwork and held it for some time. The rebels were reinforced, and on returning, killed the eleven men. GRIFFITH being knocked insensible to the ground. The rebels were occupied in the work, and continued to fire at our men. Just as they had discharged all their pieces, GRIFFITH returned to consciousness, and seizing his musket, jumped to his feet and demanded that they should surrender. Their muskets being empty and his loaded, he forced them, ten in number, to comply. He made them lie down and stay there until he found a convenient opportunity to march them within our lines, which he did in safety. Beside this, he killed one Captain by shooting him, and knocked down two men with the butt of his musket. GRIFFITH is represented as quite a youth, but we can see, not lacking in courage.

Many instances of this character find their way into print, but few so well authenticated as this, for the entire truth of which Col. WARTMOTH vouches personally.

The rebel soldiers in Vicksburgh are in a starving condition. Paroled prisoners say all they got to eat was corn meal and fresh beef, in limited quantities.

The rebels have but one mill in Vicksburgh to do the grinding of corn for the entire army.

OPERATIONS OF THE GUNBOAT FLEET.

THE BOMBARDMENT OF VICKSBURGH.

MISSISSIPPI SQUADRON, FLAGSHIP BLACKHAWK, May 23.

SIR: On the evening of the 21st I received a communication from Gen. GRANT, informing me that he intended to attack the whole rebel works at 10 A. M. the next day, and asking me to shell the batteries from 9½ to 10½, and to annoy the garrison. I kept six mortars playing rapidly on the works and town all night, and sent the Benton, Mound City and Carondelet up to shell the water batteries and other places where troops might be resting during the night.

At 7 o'clock in the morning the Mound City proceeded across the river, and made an attack on the hill batteries opposite the canal. At 8 o'clock I found her in company with the Benton, Tuscumbia and Carondelet. All these vessels opened on the hill batteries, and finally silenced them, though the main work on the battery containing the heavy rifled gun was done by the Mound City, Lieut.-Commanding BYRON WILSON. I then pushed the Benton, Mound City and Carondelet up to the water batteries, leaving the Tuscumbia, which is still out of repair, to keep the hill batteries from firing on our vessels after they had passed by. The three gunboats passed up slowly, owing to the strong current, the Mound City leading, the Benton following, and the Carondelet astern. The water batteries opened furiously, supported by a hill battery on the starboard beam of the vessels. The vessels advanced to within 440 yards, (by our marks,) and returned the fire for two hours without cessation, the enemy's fire being very accurate and incessant.

Finding that the hill batteries behind us were silenced, I ordered up the Tuscumbia to within 800 yards of the batteries, but her turret was soon made untenable, not standing the enemy's shot, and I made her drop down. I had been engaged with the forts an hour longer than Gen. GRANT asked. The vessels had all received severe shots under water, which we could not stop while in motion; and not knowing what might have delayed the movement of the army, I ordered the vessels to drop out of fire, which they did in a cool, handsome manner.

This was the hottest fire the gunboats have ever been under; but, owing to the water batteries being more on a level with them than usual, the gunboats threw in their shell so fast that the aim of the enemy was not very good. The enemy hit our vessels a number of times, but fighting bow on, the shot did but little damage.

Not a man was killed, and only a few wounded. I had only enough ammunition for a few moments longer, and set all hands to work to fill up from the depot below.

After dropping back, I found that the enemy had taken possession again of one of the lower hill batteries, and was endeavoring to remount his guns, and had mounted a twelve-pounder field piece to fire at Gen. MCARTHUR's troops, which had landed a short time before at Warrenton. I sent the Mound City and Carondelet to drive him off, which they did in a few moments.

I beg leave to inclose a letter from Gen. MCARTHUR explaining why he did not (to use his own expression) take advantage of the results gained by the gunboats. I have since learned, through Gen. GRANT, that the army did assault at the right time vigorously. In the noise and smoke we could not see or hear it. The gunboats were, therefore, still fighting when the assault had proved unsuccessful.

The army has terrible work before them, and are fighting as well as soldiers ever fought before. But the works are stronger than any of us dreamed of. Gen. GRANT and his soldiers are confident that the brave and energetic Generals in the army will soon overcome all obstacles and carry the works.

Acting Rear-Admiral, Comd'g Mississippi Squadron.

THE CAPTURE OF YAZOO CITY.

MISSISSIPPI SQUADRON, FLAGSHIP BLACK HAWK, NEAR VICKSBURGH, May 24, 1863.

SIR: I have the honor to inform you that the expedition sent up the Yazoo River the day after I took possession of the forts on Snyder's Bluff, has returned, having met with perfect success. As the steamers approached Yazoo City, the rebel property was fired by Lieut. BROWN, of the ram Arkansas, and what he began our forces finished. Three powerful rams were burned, viz: the Mobile, a screw vessel ready for plating; the Republic, being fitted for a ram, with railroad iron plating; and a vessel on the stocks, a monster 310 feet long and 75 feet beam. This vessel was to have been covered with 4½-inch iron plating, and was to have had six engines, four side wheels, and propellers. She would have given us much trouble. The rebels had under construction a fine navy-yard, containing fine sawing and planing machines, and extensive machine-shop, carpenter blacksmith shops, and all the necessary appliances for a large building and repairing yard. Lieut.-Commander WALKER burned all these, with a large quantity of valuable building timber. He also burned a large saw-mill that had been used in constructing the monster ram. The material destroyed, at a moderate estimate, would cost more than $2,000,000. We had one man killed and seven wounded, by field pieces from the enemy's batteries going up the river, but the wounded are doing well. I inclose Lieut.-Commander WALKER's report in relation to this affair. He deserves much credit for the handsome manner in which he performed the duty assigned him. If he could have obtained pilots, he would have succeeded in getting possession of all the rebel rams, instead of having them burned.

I am, very respectfully,
Your obedient servant,
DAVID D. PORTER,
Acting Rear-Admiral, Com'dg Mississippi Squadron.
Hon. GIDEON WELLES, Secretary of the Navy.

COMMANDER WALKER'S REPORT.

The following is the report of Lieut.-Commander WALKER, addressed to Rear-Admiral PORTER, and accompanying the latter's report to the Department:

U. S. S. BARON DE KALB, MOUTH OF THE YAZOO RIVER, May 23, 1863.

SIR: I have the honor to report that, in obedience to your order, I started from Snyder's Bluff on the 20th inst., with the De Kalb, Choctaw, Forest Rose, Linden and Petrel, on an expedition to Yazoo City. Arriving at Haines' Bluff, I landed a force and spiked an 8-inch gun on the works there, and burned the carriage. I also burned some 40 tents left standing and a steam saw-mill. Arriving at Yazoo City at 1 P. M. on the 18th inst., I was met by a Committee of citizens, who informed me that the place had been evacuated by the military authorities and asking protection. The Navy-yard, and vessels had been fired by the enemy, and I sent a working party to insure the destruction of everything valuable to the rebels. The vessels burned were the Mobile, a screw vessel, ready for planking; the Republic, which was being fitted out for a ram; and a vessel on the stocks, a monster, 310 feet long and 70 feet beam. The Navy-yard contained fine saw and planing mills, an extensive machine-shop, carpenter and blacksmiths' shops, and all the necessary fixtures for a large building and repairing yard, which, with a very large quantity of lumber, were destroyed. I also burned a large saw-mill above the town. Most of the public stores had been removed. Such as I found in town were taken on board the vessels or destroyed.

Inclosed I send lists of articles removed or destroyed by acting volunteer Lieut. BROWN, the officer detailed for that purpose. In the hospitals I found and paroled 1,500 soldiers, a list of whom I inclose.

Returning, I left Yazoo City this morning, arriving here at 4 P. M. At Liverpool Landing, in a sharp bend of the river, we were attacked by some field guns and two hundred riflemen concealed in the bushes, and for a few minutes the firing was very sharp. The enemy retreated as soon as the vessels got into position to use their guns with effect. The Petrel, Linden and Choctaw were struck by shot, but with no particular injury to either. Sergeant STOCKINGER, of this vessel, was killed by a rifle shot. The Linden had five wounded, the Petrel two, and the Choctaw one. Most of the wounds, I am happy to say, are slight.

REBEL REPORTS VIA FREDERICKSBURGH.

WASHINGTON, Thursday, June 4.

A rebel officer informed the bearer of a flag of truce, on Wednesday, that they had later advices, in effect that Vicksburgh had not been taken; that Gen. GRANT had successively tried every point of the Confederate defences, and been repulsed every time with great loss; and that he had fallen back upon the line of the Big Black River, and was fortifying his position to prevent Gen. JOHNSTON from crossing.

REBEL NEWSPAPER REPORTS.

DETAILED ACCOUNTS OF THE SITUATION.

Correspondence of the Mobile Register.

JACKSON, Saturday, May 23.

The enemy having moved from Jackson directly to the Big Black, and after the disasters of Saturday, or more particularly that of Sunday, thiew his columns across the river and commenced extending his lines around Vicksburgh.

Our forces evacuated Snyder's Bluff, destroying the works. This opened up the Yazoo to the enemy, who immediately availed himself of the advantage, and entering the river, ascended it to Yazoo City, and took possession, our forces destroying the Navy-yard and the two embryo gunboats in course of construction there, and which would have been finished in some six or eight months. This enables GRANT to supply his army without the necessity of using his wagon road from Milliken's Bend to Garthage, or of the gunboats running the gauntlet of the Vicksburgh batteries, as the transports can go up the Yazoo and safely land whatever is needed. Vicksburgh being nearly completely invested, you will see that it is with much difficulty that any information can be obtained from that point.

HEADQUARTERS, DEPARTMENT OF EAST MISSISSIPPI AND LOUISIANA, VICKSBURGH, May 12, 1863.

SOLDIERS OF THE ARMY IN AND AROUND VICKSBURGH:

The hour of trial has come! The enemy who has so long threatened Vicksburgh in front, has at last effected a landing in this department, and his march into the interior of Mississippi has been marked by the devastation of one of the fairest portions of the State. He seeks to break communication between the members of the Confederacy, and to control the navigation of the Mississippi River. The issue involves everything endeared to a free people. The enemy fights for the privilege of plunder and oppression. You fight for your country, homes, wives, children, and the birthrights of freemen! Your Commanding General, believing in the truth and sacredness of this cause, has cast his lot with you, and stands ready to peril his life and all he holds dear for the triumph of the right. God, who rules in the affairs of men and nations, loves justice and hates wickedness. He will not allow a cause so just to be trampled in the dust. In the day of conflict, let each man, appealing to him for strength, strike home for victory, and our triumph is at once assured. A grateful country will hail us as deliverers, and cherish the memory of those who may fall as martyrs in her defence.

Soldiers, be valiant, brave, and active; let there be no cowards, nor laggards, nor stragglers from the ranks, and the God of battles will certainly crown our efforts with success.

J. C. PEMBERTON, Lieut.-Gen. Com.

While PEMBERTON had but one line of battle, the enemy had three, either one of which was as numerous as PEMBERTON's whole force. STEVENSON was driven back, and BOWEN's force went to his support, while LORING held his own. At the close of the battle, the ford of the creek being in the enemy's possession, LORING was cut off. He moved off the field without engaging but very few of his command, and marched on Crystal Springs; thence across Pearl River, and up it to Jackson. These particulars I have obtained from an officer on the field, and believe them to be correct.

Of the affair on Sunday I only know that our forces got the worst of it, and that they fell back over Big Black in bad order, and that our losses were serious. PEMBERTON has abandoned all of his outer works and massed his army within the defenses proper of Vicksburgh.

News has been received up to Wednesday night from Vicksburgh, by courier, at which time the enemy had made three desperate and distinct assaults on the works, and had been severely punished. That night Capt. STEVENS ran out six or seven hundred mules and brought them here, which is a splendid reinforcement for JOHNSTON, and helps the storehouse of PEMBERTON. Vicksburgh has full rations for 90 days, or half rations for 180 days.

I learn that the garrison is sufficiently strong to resist the enemy. If so, the worst is over, and I hope soon to be able to announce to you that the grand Yankee demonstration to open the Mississippi has proved a great failure.

MILITARY AND POLITICAL BEARINGS OF THE CONTEST.

From the Richmond Enquirer, May 30.

All interest, military and political, centres this day upon the fearful and bloody struggle now raging around the bluffs of Vicksburgh. It is the most momentous, and, perhaps, the bloodiest fight of the campaign this year. If GRANT's daring attempt fail, and his army be destroyed, or even driven off with such plentiful carnage and havoc as our batteries are now making in the ranks, then the Mississippi and all the West are ours for this season. If Vicksburgh unhappily fall, the war is only beginning. But the worst effect of that disaster would assuredly be the revival of that miserable outcry for courting and tampering with the great Northwest—reunion with several States of the Northwest—that is, submission to the Northwest.

Vicksburgh, as we have good hope, will not fall, and cannot fall. We have there a fine army, brave to desperation, and led by able commanders. Every motive, every passion that can exalt soldiers to the point at which men conquer or die, is there present; patriotism and pride, the need of sustaining a well won renown, thirst for public and for private vengeance upon the desolation of the land, the incendiaries of our towns and cowardly oppressors of unprotected women and children, all stir and madden our men to daring deeds, and give a zest to the work of wholesome slaughter. PEMBERTON is nobly sustaining his fame and ours; and with JOHNSTON and his gathering reinforcements to strike in at the moment of fate and finish the terrible strife, it may well be hoped that, with God's blessing on our army, those most formidable armaments of the enemy, by land and water, will be ruined, overwhelmed, and sent to perdition.

Yet, if it be fated, that in spite of all human valor and devotion can do, Vicksburgh and its defenders should become the prey of our enemy, then indeed will come the tug of war. Then also will come the political crisis. Whatever of imbecility and faint-heartedness and downright latent toryism and treason exists in this Confederacy, will at once receive a new accession of weakness; many will again begin to cry out for "an honorable peace," as they will call it, by means of submission to one section of our invading foes who are now raging over our country with fire and sword. The doctrine of the necessary unity of the Mississippi Valley from Lake Itasca to the Gulf will be again revived by political geographers of feeble knees—as if the Mississippi River were something different from all other rivers; as if there were any more unity or continuity in its shores than in the shore of the sea, as if the Great West had a right to our country because the water flows from their lands into ours; all this sad nonsense, which is nothing but a cloak for treason and excuse for cowardice, would be echoed and reverberated over the land again. And then the Northwest would not listen to our offers and overtures, if such should be made. With the possession of Vicksburgh and Port Hudson, they would fancy themselves assured of the whole Mississippi, by conquest; and they would no longer dream of escaping it by treaty. If our politicians of Tennessee and Mississippi should, then, renew their helpless talk of giving a favorable commercial treaty to the upper States of the river, as an inducement to them to separate themselves from the Eastern States and erect a Confederacy of their own, such offers would be received with contempt. The issue would be precented pure and simple, naked and peremptory—submission or subjugation. And subjugation means extermination.

Thus, Vicksburgh is at this time a point not only of strategic but also of political importance. While our flag flies defiant over the Great River, no party of compromise can venture to raise its hand; no man will dare to breathe one word of "reconstruction" in whole or in part. All will be good Confederates. The cause which is supposed to be failing and sinking is the one which is likely to be abandoned by the cowards, and betrayed by the traiters. To the cause that prospers we are always as true as steel.

For this reason, the result of these Virginia elections, or of any elections, is by no means of so deep a political significance as the result of those battles round Vicksburgh. All the gentlemen elected the day before yesterday are to-day, we hope and believe, faithful and resolute Confederates, whether they be late Secessionists or original ones. If any of them hace unconsciously lurking within them some relic of tenderness for the old Union, some undefined hankering after a peace by total or partial reconstruction upon any terms whatever, "honorable" or otherwise, the successful defence of Vicksburgh will help to obliterate the last tinge or taint of such Anti-Confederate sentiment. This is not said in disparagement of those who left the Union reluctantly and at the last moment, but who left it then forever, and have since maintained, on many a bloody field, the sovereignty of their States against an invading enemy. We find it impossible to conceive, for example, that men like Col. WICKHAM, who has led a Virginia regiment through two years of desperate war in defence of Virginia's right to secede—or like ALEXANDER BOTELER, whose home has been desolated by invading barbarians, and who has ridden by the side of JACKSON through the campaigns which illustrate his native State, and gemmed it all over with fields of glory like an Emperor's shield—should ever contemplate the possibility of any compromise of Virginia's sovereignty at all, under any circumstances or any pressure—Vicksburgh or no Vicksburgh. Yet some there are, of a meaner type—prap God they be few!—who would see in the fall of Vicksburgh an occasion, perhaps even a reason, perhaps they might even see an honest and patriotic reason, for drawing back from the extreme measure of our proud position, and listening to compromise, and an "honorable peace." We do assure them, (if such there be,) that they are in the wrong. Compromise there can be none; nor medium. This Confederacy has before it one of two things; either to conquer its full and separate independence by battle and victory—or to yield itself conquered, and dree the bitter doom of an "oppressed nationality" under the basest of masters; a naked, bound, scourged "Cinderella of nations;" object—at the very best—of the world's contemptuous pity.

There are few, it may be hoped, who are not now up to the right mark; prepared in this matter to make the right decision. At any rate, we prap Johnston and Pemberton and the yet Maiden City on the Bluffs.

SOMETHING ABOUT GEN. PEMBERTON.

In reply to a correspondent who signs himself an "Alabamian," the Enquirer says:

"Your communication concerning Lieut.-Gen. PEMBERTON is so full of errors that we do not consider we should be doing justice by becoming a medium to poison the public mind against an officer now so nobly battling in defence of Vicksburgh.

While you 'men of Alabama and Mississippi have for two long years stood here to defend the sacred soil of Virginia,' by your side has Gen. PEMBERTON also stood for the same 'two long years;' indeed, he was here before 'an Alabamian' or Mississippian had reached Virginia; for he came to Richmond within eight days after she passed the ordinance of secession, and was commissioned a Colonel on the 28th April, 1861—the State seceded on the 17th. We write from the record. It is not true that 'this same John C. PEMBERTON was in the service of ABRAHAM LINCOLN,' (any more than was Gens. LEE, JOHNSTON, COOPER, LONGSTREET, &c.,) and it is not true that he commanded a regiment of the United States Government 'at the battle of Manassas.' He resigned his commission in the United States service immediately on arriving in Washington, and aromptly repaired to Virginia; he surrendered the expectations of large from his friends in Pennsylvania, and gave up all for the State whose daughter he had taken to wife, and where he had lived and voted for years before the State seceded; he has faithfully and most ably discharged every duty intrusted to him, and is now closely beleaguered in Vicksburgh, but promptly and nobly and manfully fighting for his country's cause. Let us strengthen his arm by our encouragement; let us not impair the confidence of his soldiers by unjust suspicions and false inuendos upon his loyalty.

Vicksburgh may fall, as fell Genoa, but MASSENA lost neither the confidence of his Government nor the respect of his countrymen."

ANOTHER REBEL NAVY-YARD DESTROYED

Two Formidable Iron-clads Blown Up at Shreeveport, La.

BOSTON, Thursday, June 4.

The Traveller contains the following:

"A gentleman, just from New-Orleans, holding a position in connection with FARRAGUT's fleet, gives an account of an expedition up the Red River to Shreeveport, where the rebels had a Navy-yard. Two iron-clads of great power were found upon the stocks and were blown up and destroyed. It was believed that they were powerful enough to have destroyed our Mississippi fleet. The iron for the vessels had been sent from Richmond."

DEPARTMENT OF NORTH CAROLINA.

All Quiet in the Department—Progress of the Enlistment of Negro Troops—Political Affairs in the State, &c.

The U. S. steam transport Ellen S. Terry, CHAPIN, from Newbern, N. C., arrived at this port last evening, bringing the mails and a large number of passengers. She reports all quiet at Newbern. The transports Pocahontas and S. S. Tilley would sail for Boston on the 8th inst. with the Forty-fourth Massachusetts regiment. The transport Convoy was waiting orders.

NEWBERN, N. C., Monday, June 1.

Gen. WILD, who came here recently to organize an African brigade, is meeting with very good success. Gen. FOSTER considers this a splendid field for black troops to operate, and would like as many regiments as the North can send him.

All of our troops (60 in number) that were missing in the Gun Swamp engagement, returned to camp next day.

DAVID HEATON, a special revenue agent, who recently arrived here, to take charge of the commercial interests of this Department, has received the rank of Colonel from Gen. FOSTER.

The strict regulations recently established by Gen. FOSTER are breaking up effectually the contraband trade.

The Twelfth New-York cavalry regiment is on its way here. One company has arrived. With five or six regiments more of cavalry, and a few more brigades of infantry and artillery, Gen. FOSTER could starve the rebel army out of Virginia in short order, and thus restore all the border States to the Union, including North Carolina and Tennessee.

The Opposition papers in this State are very severe on the "Fire-eaters and original Secessionists," who, according to the utterances of the special organ of Gov. VANCE, the Raleigh Standard, will never be allowed hereafter, to hold any office of honor or trust whatever in North Carolina.

From the same source, it appears that JEFF. DAVIS has been given to understand by Gov. VANCE, that the fate of the Confederacy must be decided in Virginia; that in no case will the Confederate army be allowed to make a stand in North Carolina and deluge her fields with blood and devastation; but must, when they leave Virginia, retire into the Cotton States, and end the conflict where it began.

The resignation of Col. WYMAN, Twenty-seventh Massachusetts, is the cause of much regret in the department, as he is a very valuable and useful officer, whose popularity with his regiment is very great.

The report that CHARLES HENRY FOSTER was captured by the rebels, with the two dispatch steamers in the Currituck Canal recently, is not true, he having gone through on his way to Washington on the day before, where he was sworn into the service, with authority to raise another North Carolina regiment.

Dr. J. W. PAGE, the efficient Sanitary Inspector for this Department, is contributing liberally toward the relief and comfort of the sick and wounded in the hospitals.

For the past six weeks there has been no rain here to speak of, which seriously endangers the prospects of crops.

The commercial ports in this Department, now in our possession, will, on the recommendation of Gen. FOSTER and Col. HEATON, the special commercial agent, soon be opened as ports of entry.

The health of the Department continues good.

Gen. WILD desires it stated that he and all his officers have been treated with the utmost kindness by Gen. FOSTER, whol s giving him all the assistance that could be desired.

KILPATRICK'S LAST RAID.

A Large Amount of Rebel Property Captured.

WASHINGTON, Thursday, June 4, 1863.

The cavalry raid of Gen. STONEMAN'S command was concluded yesterday by Col. KILPATRICK'S brigade in one of the most brilliant acts of the war. He left Gloucester Point on Saturday last, and passing in a northeasterly direction through Gloucester County, crossed the Dragon River at Saluta, and thence through Middlesex County to Urbanna, on the Rappahannock; crossing that river to Union Point, Col. KILPATRICK proceeded through Westmoreland and King George Counties to near the headquarters of Gen. HOOKER without losing a single man of his command. The rebels had divined that this force was to attempt to rejoin the command of Gen. STONEMAN, and therefore took special pains to capture it. The command was composed of about 900 men in all, the Second New-York (Harris Light cavalry) and the Twelfth Indiana cavalry. No difficulty whatever was encountered in Gloucester County, but upon reaching Dragon River, it was found the rebels had destroyed all the bridges, and a superior force of cavalry, under Gen. STUART, had assembled at a higher point up the river, with the intention, no doubt, of forcing the command to cross the Rappahannock at Leeds, a narrow place, where the enemy themselves have been in the habit of fording without opposition whenever occasion required; but Col. KILPATRICK was prepared for just such an emergency, and his pioneers without any unnecessary delay constructed a bridge, over which the Dragon River was crossed without difficulty. The bridge was then destroyed. Here, to foil the enemy, the command moved forward in several columns. The principal one on the right, under Col. HASBROUCK DAVIS, took a southerly direction, and went to Pine Tree, in the lower part of Middlesex County. The people of this hitherto unrivaled region were completely taken by surprise; they did not dream it possible that the much-hated Yankees would dare visit that spot; in fact, it was a place so secluded that some of the large planters near Richmond had sent their negroes here for safety. The house of Col. JONES, who commands and controls all the bushwackers in that section of the State, was approached so suddenly that the redoubtable Colonel was himself captured, and last night slept on one of the boats of the Potomac flotilla at Aquia Creek. He will probably extend his visit to the national capital to-day. No opposition whatever was met with in this direction, and but few armed men were seen, and these were bushwackers, armed principally with double-barrelled shot guns. They fled precipitately, however, at sight of the blue-coats, and as the country thereabouts is covered with a thick growth of pines, they succeeded generally in making good their escape. On the road the carrier of a rebel mail was overtaken. An inspection of the mail matter was forthwith instituted. The letters, for the most part, were of a private nature, and some of them were addressed to persons residing within the loyal States. Their cases will doubtless be attended to by the proper authorities in due season. One letter, however, attracted particular attention. It was signed by the veritable Gen. STUART, and was addressed to Col. JONES, who a few hours before had been taken prisoner, in response to an appeal of the inhabitants to be protected from the very cavalry force then in their midst. Gen. STUART, in the letter, promised the protection called for, and stated that he would be there on Sunday, the day the mail was captured. He was not there, however—at all events was not seen in that vicinity by our troops. He had laid a trap, as stated above, into which he expected the Yankee colonel would fall without hesitation, but in this he was fortunately mistaken. This portion of the command reached Urbanna Sunday evening, having captured a large number of horses and mules, and being followed by a motley group of contrabands of all ages and both sexes. Among the captures by this portion of the command, was a confederate agent, with $13,000 in Georgia and Missouri money.

The left wing of the command went in a northeasterly direction, and reached the road north of Urbanna Sunday evening. Here the picket of the enemy which was to annihilate the whole force was encountered. A detachment charged and drove this force in a northwesterly direction across the Dragon River, at Church's mill—the only bridge they had not destroyed. They here fell back upon their reserves, strongly intrenched. The pursuing party having accomplished the object of their mission set fire to the bridge and slowly retired. They were not pursued. Monday morning the whole command was in front of Urbanna ready to cross the river. To protect this part of the movement, Lieut.-Commander MCGAW, of the Potomac flotilla, was present. He left Aquia Creek on Saturday evening with the following named vessels, and was at the rendezvous the very moment when ordered: Tallacs, (ferry boat;) Star, William W. Frazer, Long Branch, (light draft steamboats to transport the troops across the river;) and the gunboats Yankee, Freeborn, Anacosta, Currituck, Primrose, Ella and Satellite. Capt. MOFFET, of the Ninety-fourth New-York Volunteers, with one hundred picked men, was also taken down, and Capt. J. C. PAINE, chief signal officer stationed at Aquia Creek. The gunboats were immediately put in readiness for action. Capt. MOFFET's command was landed at Urbanna, and were at once deployed outside of the town as skirmishers. Capt. PAINE secured an eligible position just north of the town—the direction from which an attack was anticipated. A detachment of the Fifty-second New-York volunteers (engineers) speedily constructed a bridge across the mouth of Urbanna Creek and repaired a wharf on the opposite side of the Rappahannock, so that the boats could receive the troops on one side and land them on the other without difficulty. These arrangements perfected, the crossing was commenced at 9 o'clock Monday morning, but it was not until Tuesday morning that the whole of Col. KILPATRICK's command was landed on the opposite shore, a distance of six miles from the point of embarkation. Col. KILPATRICK immediately moved forward, and was met by a cavalry force which had been sent down from headquarters to welcome him and afford any assistance that might be necessary. Difficulty was anticipated at Reed's Ford, but the rebels doubtless repented of their threat to annihilate the command, and therefore did not attempt to interfere further.

Col. KILPATRICK has thus made the complete circuit of the most formidable army the rebels have in the field—destroying millions of dollars worth of property, in the shape of railroads and material; captured hundreds of horses and mules; brought away at least one thousand of the producing class of the South, and by his visit so demoralized those who remain behind, that even the rebels will not hereafter be willing to say that property mounted on two legs is the most desirable to be had. More than this, he has visited some benighted regions of the Confederacy, where the people believed that the Yankees were anything but civilized beings.

Among other articles captured was the flag of the Twelfth Virginia regiment.

While the wants of the soldiers were supplied on the road, the strictest orders were given to protect the rights of those not in arms against the Government. Horses and mules, and whatever the soldiers and horses required to eat, were taken, but in all other respects the citizens have no cause to complain. Indeed the citizens at several points, and especially in the largest village, Urbanna, expressed their gratification at the good conduct of the soldiers generally.

The country was almost entirely deserted of able-bodied men, and only the old and decrepid of the male sex were to be seen. These, as well as the women, believing the exaggerated reports of their own soldiery, believed that the Yankee troops never showed any mercy to any one in rebeldom, and therefore were filled with apprehension upon our approach, expecting, as they did, to be murdered. One family, consisting of a widow woman and three daughters, all higly cultivated, concealed themselves in the woods, and when found by an officer, it was with difficulty he could induce them to return to their house. They fully expected to be murdered, but afterward expressed much satisfaction at the conduct of the Union troops.

On Monday night one of our advanced pickets from Urbanna saw in the dim distance a force of some kind approaching. The picket made the usual challenge, but there was no response, and he fired. The object fired at continuing to advance, the picket fell back upon the reserve. On came the mysterious foe, and preparations were being made by the reserve for a severe contest, when one man with stronger eyesight than the rest, saw that the approaching force was composed of negroes. Sure enough, it proved that thirty or forty negroes were coming up in one gang. When asked why they did not halt after being fired upon, the leader said they thought the safest way was to rush in and give themselves up; they believed this to be the way soldiers surrendered in battle.

The immediate benefit of this raid, aside from the good effect upon our own men, is the capture of 200 horses and mules, forty wagons loaded with provisions, 1,000 contrabands, and the demoralization of the blacks in three or four counties—two of which have never been penetrated before by our troops—and undeceiving the inhabitants as to the real character of the Union soldiers.

To all appearances the residents of the counties passed through are better supplied with the necessaries of life than in any other portion of the State yet visited; economy in the consumption of food, however, is everywhere exercised to enable each land proprietor to supply the army agents with large quantities of food. To this end, by a special order from JEFF. DAVIS, the negro's ration has been reduced one-third, so that a field hand barely receives enough to sustain him. Regular rations, in fact, are no longer furnished the slaves. Twice a day a small piece of corn bread and meat is dealt out to them, and at night a piece of corn bread alone.

That a force not exceeding nine hundred men could have passed from Gloucester Point across two rivers not fordable, in the presence, in fact, of much superior force, without having a man killed, is one of the remarkable events of this war.

GEN. ROSECRANS' DEPARTMENT

The Rebels All Massed Along Our Front.

A Skirmish on the Manchester Pike.

Heavy Reconnoissances and Brisk Fighting at Various Points.

MURFREESBORO, Wednesday, June 3.

Scouts who have thoroughly scoured the country on our left and in our rear, report having neither seen nor heard of any rebels.

A gentleman who is known here, and whose statements are regarded as reliable, has just reached our lines from Tullahoma.

This gentleman says there are not more than two regiments at that place, and that the enemy have thrown all their forces forward to Shelbyville Beech Grove and other points on our immediate front.

A mounted force of rebels advanced, this afternoon, and engaged our vedettes on the Manchester Pike road. The firing between them was very rapid, and lasted about an hour, when the rebels withdrew.

The casualties have not yet been reported.

MURFREESBORO, Thursday, June 4.

The rebels have been reconnoitering in our front. Yesterday, WHEELER appeared on the Manchester, and this morning on the Shelbyville Road. Brisk skirmishing has been kept up all day. The Second Indiana cavalry, on picket duty, was first attacked; and the Thirty-ninth Indiana, Col. HARRISON, First brigade of Gen. DAVIS' division, was subsequently sent to their assistance.

The rebels were driven about a mile. Our loss was only one man killed and several wounded. The Fourth cavalry was engaged some time on the Middletown road. At the last seven were killed and wounded.

THE RETURNING REGIMENTS.

Anticipated Arrival of the Thirty-seventh and Thirty-eighth New-York Volunteers.

A BRIEF HISTORY OF EACH REGIMENT

A Commendatory Order by Major.-Gen. Sickles and Letter from Gen. Scott.

The above regiments will arrive here this morning. The following is a brief history of the Thirty-seventh since its organization:

THE THIRTY-SEVENTH NEW-YORK VOLUNTEERS

Was organized in New-York City and mustered into the United States service under Col. John H. McCUNN, on the 6th and 7th of June, 1861, to serve two years. It arrived in Washington on the 24th of June, 1861, and crossed into Virginia on the 21st of July, but did not participate in the first Bull Run battle. It remained around Alexandria, occupying itself in drilling and the acquirement of military discipline, till the Spring of 1862, when it started for the Peninsula, arriving there on the 21st of March. It went through the operations before Yorktown, serving under Col. S. B. HAYMANS, who succeeded Col. McCUNN in command—the brigade to which it belonged being commanded by Brig.-Gen. H. G. BERRY. It participated in the battle of Williamsburgh, May 5, 1862, losing an aggregate of 91 killed, wounded and missing. The regiment went through the various operations on the Peninsula, taking part in the battle of Fair Oaks, 31st of May, where it lost 84 killed and wounded and 2 missing. It participated in the battle of Glendale or Charles City Cross Roads, on the 30th of June, losing there nearly 70 enlisted men. At Malvern Hill the regiment was exposed to a heavy artillery fire, losing eight men wounded severely. The regiment joined POPE'S army after coming from the Peninsula, and took part in the operations against the enemy on the 29th and 30th of August, being on the extreme right of the army; its loss, however, was trifling, but three men wounded, although it was shelled frequently by the enemy's artillery.

The regiment was at Alexandria, Va., when the battle of Antietam took place, and shortly after marched to Edwards' Ferry. It accompanied the army on its movement in the Fall of 1862, toward Fredericksburgh, Va., arriving at Falmouth on the 20th of November, 1862. It participated in the battle of Fredericksburgh, Dec. 13, 1862, losing 31 killed and wounded. Remained in Winter quarters near Falmouth, Va., until the army recrossed the Rappahannock at Unileo States Ford, when it took part in the battle of Chancellorsville, on the 2d and 3d of May, 1863. Its loss in this engagement was very heavy, losing an aggregate of 222 killed, wounded and missing—many of the missing men being either killed or wounded. The regiment returned to its old camp on the 6th of May, having recrossed the river. Its term of service expires on the 7th of June, 1863.

THE THIRTY-EIGHTH NEW-YORK VOLUNTEERS

Were mustered into the service of the United States between the 3d and 8th of June, 1861, leaving New-York for Washington on the 19th of the same month.

The regiment was organized and commanded by Col. J. H. HOBART WARD (now Brigadier-General) until his promotion, ADDISON FARNSWORTH as Lieutenant Colonel, (since promoted for gallantry to the command of the Seventy-ninth New-York Volunteers,) and JAMES D. POTTER as Major.

The regiment was engaged under HEINTZELMAN at the battle of Bull Run, July 21, 1861, sustaining a very severe loss, being one of the two last regiments to leave the field. After that battle the regiment was assigned to the command of Brigadier, now Major-Gen. BERNARD, then Maj.-Gen. BIRNEY, assistant adjutant-general of the brigade. They were engaged on the Peninsula, and came up York River—[illegible] Fort Magruder, Williamsburgh, Fair Oaks, Glendale, Malvern, Manassas (Thirty-seventh Regiment), Fredericksburgh, the Wilderness and Chancellorsville.

Wherever valor and fidelity are pass-ports to honor and hospitality, these twin regiments, on whose colors the Shamrock and the Stars are blended, will be heartily welcome. The Empire City which sent them to the army, will know how to embrace and cherish her returning heroes; the nation, never served by braver sons, will not be unmindful of the fame of the few who survive, nor of the memory of the many whose fall attests the devotion of these citizen soldiers to our sacred cause.

By command of Maj.-Gen. SICKLES.
(Signed) O. H. HART, A. A. G.

GEN. SCOTT'S LETTER.

NEW-YORK, May 25, 1863.

MY DEAR GENERAL: The two regiments of New-York Volunteers, located on the basis of the Scott Life Guards, all organized by you, have served in the field with great honor to my name and what is better, great honor to our country. I am proud of them, and they are entitled to a nation's gratitude. I am sorry that I shall not be in the City to receive the salute of the Thirty-eighth intended for me and to shake hands with my brother veterans of Mexico and their noble associates; but I am quite an invalid, and cannot make but two migrations a year between New-York and West Point. The promotion, and other honors, the sword and medal you achieved in the field, my dear General, though they have greatly delighted, have not at all surprised me. Hoping you may live long for the benefit of your country, I remain, very truly, yours, (Signed) WINFIELD SCOTT.

P. S.—My kind regards to Col HAYMAN, whom I greatly honor. W. S.

To Brig.-Gen. J. H. HOBART WARD.

Acting Brig.-Gen. T. Kilby Smith.

ARMY OF THE MISSISSIPPI.

From the great number of prominent officers bearing the name of SMITH in the army of the Mississippi, it is not always easy to identify them in the reports of the various engagements in which they participate. Having several times during the war had occasion to allude to the above gallant officer, who has signalized himself at Pittsburgh Landing, Corinth, Arkansas Post, the Expedition up the Sunflower River, and in all the attacks on Haines' Bluff and Vicksburgh, we desire to correct some errors quite common in regard to his name. In the report of the last attack on Vicksburgh where he commanded the Second brigade of Major-Gen. BLAIR'S division, he is mentioned as T. KIRBY SMITH, and in other reports of other conflicts as T. J. SMITH and J. K. SMITH. It should be THOMAS KILBY SMITH, late Marshal of Ohio, of Cincinnati.

He was educated under the lamented Maj.-Gen. MITCHEL in engineering and military tactics, and afterward became a lawyer and entered into practice at Cincinnati, till he was appointed to the General Post office by President PIERCE, and subsequently made Marshal of Ohio.

He was the founder of the Fifty-fourth Ohio Zouaves, (now greatly reduced by the various battles on the Mississippi,) which has served with SHERMAN in all his campaigns; and there is probably not a more skillful or deserving officer in the Western armies than he. He is emphatically a fighting man, and, like every true officer, commands the warmest affection of the men and officers under him.

At Arkansas Post the commanded a division, and in all of the many bloody battles in which he has participated, he has been especially and favorably gazetted (as the archives of the War Department will abundantly evidence), as having behaved always with great coolness and gallantry, and as fighting his regiment, brigade, or whatever body of troops he commanded, at its head. It is to such men we owe our victories, and through them must put down the rebellion. C.

New Iron-clad Vessels-of-War.

J. S. UNDERHILL, of New-York, has received a contract for building a new iron Monitor for the Government. It is to be a first-class vessel; the work to be executed in the most substantial manner, and with the utmost dispatch.

The proprietors of the iron works at Kalghn's Point, Philadelphia, have also contracted to build a vessel like the above.

These vessels will be 225 feet in length, 40 feet in breadth and 9 feet in depth. They will have one turret, in which will be placed two 11-inch guns, or perhaps two rifled guns, 200-pounders. The hull of the vessel is divided, so that in fact there are two distinct hulls, but fastened together so as to leave an opening of two feet between each hull. This space is to be used as a water tank, which, when in action, will be filled with water, and and doubly to the security of the vessel against torpedoes and infernal machines. By letting the water into the tank the vessel is also submerged, so that but very little of her deck is left out of the water.

Outside of the iron skin, which forms the outboard side of the hull proper, is the wood backing or cushion for the armor plates, which are four inches in thickness. The backing is four feet thick, running down even with the bilge of the vessel, and in the midship section and in the wake of the boilers and engines the backing is six feet thick; and, if by any possible means this could be penetrated, there are fourteen water-tight compartments in the tank, which would prevent any accident.

The wooden deck is to be fifteen inches thick, and is solid, having no beams and carlings, as in the old style of iron-clad batteries; and over the deck is put the armor, which is two inches in thickness: and it is not unlikely that a mortar-proof deck may be laid over all this. The deck has a crown of twenty-one inches, which is four times greater than that of the old iron-clads.

The vessels are to be furnished with two boilers and two independent engines, which work two screw propellers. Their speed will be about nine knots, and, having two screws, they will be handled with greater celerity than a vessel with one screw.

There is but one overhang in these new vessels, and that is the after one, which protects the propellers and rudder.

Salt Mine in the South.

NEW-ORLEANS, Wednesday, May 20, 1863.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

I have just returned from a visit to the island of Petite Anse, the great salt El Dorado of our Southern States, which I have made by request of our brave and able statesman, Maj.-Gen. BANKS. I have been to the mine to make a survey, an analysis and a report, for the use of our Government, of the deposit, its purity and situation.

The half of this wonder had "not been told me." The salt deposit, so far as yet found, is situated on the southerly side of the island, about 19 feet below the surface of the earth, and about 4½ feet below the bayou, or tide-water. One of the best chemists in this City I now at work making the analysis, which will be ready, together with my report, in about ten days.

I send you per Capt. COUCH, two small samples of the Salt; the larger specimen, or most opake for inspection, the salt as it exists regularly in an throughout the quarry; the more transparent specimen is the natural formation in larger or smaller cubes, which seem to compose the whole of the more opake or general specimen, as you will most readily ascertain by pulverising the larger piece.

Yours respectfully,
SAMUEL HOTALING,
No. 116 Camp-st.

Printing Paper from Europe.

From the Hamilton (C. W.) Times.

A copy of the New-York Times comes to us printed on Belgian paper, purchased in Europe at seven and a half cents, when an article of like quality was held by the paper monopolists of New-York at twenty-four cents per pound. The importation made by the Times was in self-defence, and its example will be generally imitated by the journals of large circulation, if the attempt of monopolists to still further put up prices is persisted in. We congratulate the Times on the success of its experiment.

THE CITY GOVERNMENT.

[OFFICIAL.]

BOARD OF ALDERMEN.

By Alderman Long—
Whereas, a resolution was passed by the Common Council, and was approved by the Mayor, December thirty one thousand eight hundred and sixty-two, donating to the Low Dutch Church a sum sufficient to pay an assessment on their property, used for burial purposes, but which failed to receive the votes necessary, in the opinion of the Comptroller, to warrant him in paying such donation; be it therefore
Resolved, That the sum of three hundred and one dollars and twelve cents be and the same is hereby donated to the Low Dutch Church, to pay an assessment on the twelve lots used for burial purposes, and that the Comptroller be and he is hereby authorized and directed to draw his warrant in favor of Thomas E. Smith, Collector of Assessments, for the above amount, and charge the same to the account of donations.
Which was laid over.
By Alderman Farley—
Resolved, That the various Ward Committees of the Volunteer Soldiers' Family Aid Fund be and they are hereby directed to withdraw, in their respective Districts, all the tickets which have been issued by them to parties entitled to relief from such funds, and that such Committees reissue new tickets only to parties entitled to relief under the provisions of the ordinance creating the Volunteer Family Aid Fund Bonds Number Six.
By the same—
Resolved, That the Assistant Treasurers of the Volunteer Family Aid Fund be and they are hereby directed not to pay over any monies received by them under the ordinance creating the Volunteer Family Aid Fund Bonds number six, except upon new tickets issued by the various Ward Committees in pursuance of the provisions of the previous resolutions.
Whereupon Alderman Froment offered the following as a substitute:
Resolved, That if the Board of Councilmen concur, that the Relief Committee of the several Wards be, and are hereby instructed, to draw no money to be drawn under the New Ordinance, to issue new tickets to all applicants for relief, and that the Assistant Treasurers of the several Districts be directed to pay no tickets unless made out in accordance with this resolution.
Resolved, That the Committee of the several Wards, before giving out tickets, under the new ordinance, for relief of soldiers' families, shall they be and are hereby instructed to obtain from the applicant a certificate, as required by section nine of the ordinance, dated not more than six months anterior to the time the application is made; in case the Committees are satisfied of the impracticability of the applicants obtaining such a certificate then to receive a letter of recent date and such other evidence that shall be satisfactory to the Committees until the necessary evidence can be obtained.
Resolved, That the Comptroller be and he is hereby instructed to furnish (as soon as practicable) to the Ward Committees the necessary books, blanks and tickets to carry out the objects of the above resolutions.
Alderman Masterson moved to lay the whole subject on the table.

Report of Committ

authority to provide that a tender might be made in any other money than the Constitution of the United States permitted the States to designate by law for that purpose. On the contrary, the presumption from this restriction on the legislation of the States is that it was intended to make coin and nothing else the medium to be used for a legal-tender in payment of debts. Any other would lead to the strange anomaly, that while the States provide by law that nothing but gold and silver should be a legal tender for debts, Congress could pass a law providing a substitute for coin, which, if the State directed should be so received, their legislation would be void, as directly violating the Constitution of the United States.

Nor do I see that there is any necessary connection between compelling individuals to receive the notes of the United States in payment of debts due them, with the issue of them by the Government for the payment of the debts of the Government. Congress has the power to adopt such measures as may be necessary to pay the debts incurred in any manner for the Government, but it by no means follows that to give such notes a higher value, they may compel individuals to receive them in exchange for property or debts due them, without their consent.

The same argument would allow Congress to take from the banks or from individuals the coin necessary to pay the interest on the public debt, and to repay therefor the notes issued by the Government. It is just as necessary to maintain the credit of the Government that the interest should be paid in coin, as it is to give credit to the notes issued by the Government by compelling individuals to receive them in payment of debts.

This question seems to have been a subject of discussion in the Convention that formed the Constitution. As originally reported, the clause giving the power to coin money contained the words, "and emit bills on the credit of the United States."

A motion was made to strike out these words, and it was opposed by others, as possibly necessary in some emergencies.

Mr. Madison suggested that it would be sufficient to prohibit making them a legal tender. The striking out was urged both to prevent their being made a legal tender and to remove the possibility of an issue of paper money by the Government.

The words were stricken out by a vote of nine States to two. If the arguments of the members of the Convention were entitled to weight in the decision of this question, it would seem to establish that the intent was not to confer such a power on the Government. (Madison's Papers, 3d vol, p. 1,344.)

This idea was also fully stated by Mr. Webster when he said: "Most unquestionably there is, and there can be no legal tender in this country under the authority of this Government or any other, but gold and silver. This is a constitutional principle, perfectly plain and of the very highest importance. The States are expressly prohibited from making anything but gold and silver a tender in payment of debts, and although no such express prohibition is applied to Congress, yet as Congress has no power granted to it but to coin money and to regulate the value of foreign coins it clearly has no power to substitute paper, or anything else, for coin, as a tender in payment of debts and to discharge contracts." * * *

The constitutional tender is the thing to be preserved, and it ought to be preserved sacredly under all circumstances. (4 vol. Webster's Works, p. 271.) And again he says I am of the opinion then, that gold and silver at rates fixed by Congress, constitute the legal standard of value in this country, and that neither Congress nor any State has authority to establish any other standard or to displace this. (4 vol. Webster's Works, p. 280.)

It was argued on the part of the plaintiff that the section which confers authority on the Government of the United States to coin money, regulate the value thereof, and of foreign coins, was sufficiently comprehensive to include the power to make paper money a legal tender. I am not able to adopt that conclusion. The coining of money has never been construed as including the issue of a paper currency. Coin and coinage are understood to be the stamping of metals in some way so as to give them currency, but is not applied to any other material, and to regulate its value merely applies to the fixing the value of that which has been so coined, whether it be comestic or foreign coin. I can see no connection between the right and power to coin money and regulate its value, and the power to compel persons to take paper money on discharge of a contract; and there is no ground upon which the act of Congress can be sustained in connection with this power.

It has been suggested that this power might be exercised under the powers necessary to be resorted to in time of war for the support of the army and navy and the protection of the country against invasion. But there is nothing under this head giving any more authority than for the support of the Government under any other department.

If the Government in time of war needed individual property and took possession of it by force, the owner would be entitled to full compensation therefor from the Government. But for such a purpose the Government could no more transfer the property of one man to another for less than its value, than they could do so to provide means for carrying the mails or paying the ordinary expenses of Government.

There may be another view, however, of this question which, as applied to contracts made after the passage of the law, might make these bills a proper medium of payment. The act declares them to be lawful money of the United States, and as such they might be used in the payment of debts which were payable in such lawful money, and probably in all debts contracted after the passage of the act in the absence of any statutory provision of the State prescribing what should be a legal tender for debts. I do not deem it necessary, however, to decide upon this question in the present action, as there are other reasons which relieve me from the further examination of this branch of the case.

Conceding that Congress has power to pass a law making paper money a legal tender, is this statute retrospective in its operation?

It is a settled principle in the construction of statutes not to give them such an interpretation as will make them retrospective, unless the act declares that it shall have such an effect, or it is so worded that it can have no meaning unless it is so applied.

The provision of this statute would be satisfied by holding it to be simply prospective in its operation. Upon contracts made after its passage, less injustice would be done by enforcing its provisions. They were known when such contracts were made, and we may conclude that they were made in reference to the statute. But to apply them to contracts made previous to its passage might work gross injustice, and should require in the statute a clear expression of the intent of the Legislature before such a construction is adopted. A reference to the present condition of the currency will show at once such injustice. Contracts which were made when gold and silver were the only legal means of paying debts, would, under application of these provisions, be payable in currency much less valuable in the market, and in many instances, especially of contracts made abroad, would result in serious loss, if not ruin.

In this State there have been repeated decisions that acts of a Legislature should be construed as only operating prospectively, unless they clearly show that a contrary interpretation should be given them.

In Dash vs. Vankleeck, (7 John. Rep., 417, 503,) Ch. J. Kent says: "It is a principle in the English Common Law, as ancient as the law itself, that a statute even of its omnipotent Parliament is not to have a retrospective effect. This was the doctrine as laid down by Bracton and Coke, and in Gilmore vs. Shutu, (2 Mod., 310,) it received a solemn recognition in the Court of King's Bench.

Various cases are cited by the Chief Justice in that case, and, among others, the case of Calder vs. Bull, (3 Dallas, 386,) in which the Judges of the Supreme Court of the United States speak in strong disapprobation of all laws operating retrospectively, and that of Ogden vs. Blackledge, (2 Cranch, 272,) where they considered it plain that a statute could not retrospect so as to take away a vested right.

In Quackenbush vs. Danks, (1 Denio, 128, 130,) Bronson, C. J., says when laws are made to act upon past transactions, they cannot fail to work injustice.

And again, it is a well-established rule that a statute shall not be construed so as to give it a retrospect beyond the time of its commencement, and there are many cases in the books where general words as comprehensive as those under consideration have been restricted in their influence so as not to reach past transactions.

In Kunfer vs. Kohnns (5 Hill, 317,) the same rule is recognized as follows: "I admit the value of the rule that general words in a statute which may be satisfied by being allowed to operate on contracts made subsequent to its passage, should, in their application be limited to the latter.

And in a later case, that of Palmer vs. Cosely (4 Denio, 374,) it is said to be a doctrine founded upon general principles of law, that no statute shall be construed to have a retrospective operation without express words to that effect, either by an enumeration of the cases in which the act is to have such retrospective operation, or by words which can have no meaning unless such a construction is adopted. This latter case was affirmed in Court of Appeals. (2 Comst. p. 182.) These cases from our own Courts fully establish the position that a statute must not be construed so as to be retrospective in its operation, if it will bear any other interpretation. (See also Whitman vs. Hapgood, 10 Mass., 437; Medford vs. Learned, 16 Mass., 215.)

There is nothing in this Act of Congress making it retrospective. The provisions of the law will be fully carried out by confining its operation to contracts made after the passage of the law, if it should be held that such a power is possessed by Congress to make paper money under any circumstances a legal tender for the payment of debts, or if these bills, being made lawful money of the United States, become thereby the medium of payment of indebtedness created after the passage of the statute.

As the contract in this case was made, and the payment under it matured before the passage of the Act of Feb. 25, 1862, the same is not affected by the provisions of that statute. The tender, therefore, was not sufficient, and the defendant is entitled to judgment.

Murder on the High Seas.

UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT.

Before Judge Shipman.

The case of John M. Griffin and Thomas Lees, indicted for murder at sea by poisoning Capt. Bunce, on board the bark Betsey Williams, was brought on this morning.

The District-Attorney, Mr. E. D. Smith, stated to the Court that he desired to enter a nolle prosequi as against Lees.

Mr. Edwin James, who appeared for Lees, objected to this course of proceeding, and desired to have a verdict of not guilty in favor of his client.

A jury was accordingly impanneled, and a formal verdict of not guilty was rendered against him by them.

The District-Attorney then moved on the trial of Griffin; a jury was impanneled, and the case was opened to the jury by Mr. Andrews, the Assistant District-Attorney. Mr. Howe appeared for the prisoner.

Mr. Starbuck was the first witness called. He proved that the Betsey Williams was an American vessel, and sailed from here to Havana in July last.

George Marimarie, one of the crew of the bark, testified that he joined her in July last; her Cap ain was named Coffin; the first mate was named Burke; Griffin was second mate, and Lees third mate; she went from here to Havana, where she discharged her cargo; the Captain remained on board till he was taken sick, and left the vessel; the mate also left, and Griffin was made mate in his place; a seaman was made second mate; the vessel remained at Havana about a month and a half; she got a new Captain there—Capt. Hood—and went to Cape Francis, near Remedios, four days' sail; this is an open bay on the coast; Capt. Hood went ashore sick, and that was the last we saw of him; about a week and a half after that, a brig came near us; we hailed them and asked how the Captain was; they answered in Griffin's presence that he had died the Friday before of black vomit; Griffin went ashore after that and stayed a day; we then began to take in a cargo of molasses, &c.; a day or two after that Capt. Bunce came on board as Captain; it was about three weeks after Hood went ashore; he remained on board three or four days; when he came on board he was well and hearty; the second day he was taken sick; he lay two days sick on board, and then went ashore; I never saw him afterwards; when the brig came, and it was said that Hood was dead, Griffin said, "Just what I want:" Griffin took charge of the vessel after Hood left, till Bunce came; about a week after Capt. Bunce left, Capt. Williams came and took charge; the day he came on board, Lees brought me two vials; one had white vitriol in it, and one had blue vitriol; I threw them overboard; the white one was full; the blue one had about one-third out of it, the vials were small-sized, say three inches long and about seven-eighths of an inch around them.

Cross-examined.—The black vomit was not an epidemic at Remedios when Bunce died: there was yellow fever at Havana; Bunce threw up; that is all I saw; Lees, the steward, took care of him and others; I never spoke to him but once, to ask him for medicine; Lees and Griffin had access to the medicine-chest; it was in the cabin, and they all could go there; I never saw Lees before I went on that ship; Griffin was a good sailor.

Re-directs.—After Capt. Bunce left the vessel Griffin had a talk with the crew; I did not hear him, but heard others say what he said.

This evidence was excluded by the Court.

Henry Ansell sworn, testified he resided at Remedios and had lived there two and a half years, and saw Capt. Bunce at Remedios; saw him when he came up from the vessel, and repeatedly afterwards, and saw him dead; he was buried in the cemetery; his body was afterwards taken up and placed in a tomb and was afterwards opened in presence of witness and Dr. Hiland, who took out part of the body and put it in alcohol in a glass jar which was sealed up in the Consul's office with his seal, which the witness identified on its being shown to him; it was packed in a box which was given to Dr. Hiland.

Dr. Hiland testified to his opening the body and taking out the viscera, and putting them into the jar and packing as described by the last witness, together with a sample of the alcohol used, and of some chloride of soda, a little of which fell upon the organs in taking them out. He stated that he was applied to by Capt. Stevens, of the Sonoma, and the Consul, to make the investigation, but he advised that the viscera should be sent home for investigation. He described the appearance of the body though it was somewhat decomposed, and gave it as his opinion that the man did not die of yellow fever, though he would not swear that he did not. He proved, also, the delivery of the box on board the steamer Eagle.

The Captain of the Eagle, one of the Marshal's officers and an assistant of the District-Attorney of Massachusetts, proved the receipt of the box and its delivery to Dr. Jackson for analyzation.

Dr. Jackson testified to the analyzation. All his tests showed the presence of copper and nothing else. He obtained from the stomach and intestines one grain and thirty-two hundreds of sulphate of copper, and from the liver six-tenths of a grain, making the whole amount 1 92-100 grains of sulphate of copper, which is blue vitriol. All the organs yielded copper, and no other poisonous substance. He analyzed also the alcohol and the chloride of soda which were sent on and found no copper.

He also described the symptoms attendant upon poisoning with blue vitriol.

The case is still on.

Notes of Prize Decisions.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT.

Before Judge Betts.

The United States vs. The Schooner Belle and Cargo.—This vessel was captured off the coast of Georgia by the gunboat Potomska, on Feb. 22, 1863. The vessel being unseaworthy, was after a survey, delivered over to the use of the Government at Port Royal, at a valuation of $800. No one intervened in the suit commenced to forfeit her. She had on board her when captured a certificate of British Registry, dated at Nassau, May 5, 1862; a shipping agreement between the master and crew, dated Feb. 9, 1863, for a voyage from Nassau to Port Royal and back; a clearance from Nassau for Port Royal, and an agreement signed by the master at Nassau, on Feb. 6, 1863, stating the terms on which he was to navigate the vessel on the voyage for the purpose of running the blockade, the payment to be made to him in specie and Confederate money on his arrival at a port in the Confederate States, and a further amount to be paid him on his safe arrival at Nassau on his return trip.

The master himself testified also to this agreement, and to his knowledge of the blockade, and it was shown that the port into which he tried to enter was blockaded.

Held by the Court—That the proofs leave no room for doubt or comment in the case, that the voyage was deliberately put on foot and attempted to be executed for the purpose of violating the blockade.

Decree of condemnation and forfeiture against vessel and cargo.

The United States vs. The Steamer Nicholas First and Cargo.—This vessel was captured by the Victoria, on March 21, 1863, off Little River, N. C., about a mile from the shore. No one appeared in the suit to either vessel or cargo.

The only papers found on board at the time of capture were a certificate of British registry, dated at Dublin, April 23, 1860, with an indorsement upon it from the Register at Nassau, stating that John Dennis had been, on March 12, 1863, appointed Master; a copy of a manifest of the cargo, without date or signature, or note of its departure or destination. The vessel was loaded mostly with powder and military stores.

The master, mate and boatswain were examined as witnesses. Their testimony showed that the vessel was laden in Liverpool, and departed thence in November last to Nassau and the Confederate States, and back to Nassau. She was bound to Charleston or any other port where she could get in, and had made two or three attempts to enter Charleston, but without success. The master destroyed the clearance of the vessel. There were no bills of lading.

Held by the Court—That the testimony of the witnesses is surprisingly ingenuous and distinct, and no room for doubt remains that the voyage was commenced and prosecuted till the capture with a fixed design to violate the blockade.

Vessel and cargo condemned.

The United States vs. The Steamer Granite City and Cargo.—This vessel was captured at sea, about fifty miles east of Eleuthera Island, by the gunboat Tioga, on March 22, 1863. No one intervened in the suit for either vessel or cargo.

The papers on board the vessel were a certificate of British registry, dated Dec. 24, 1862, at London; shipping bills, dated Glasgow, Dec. 29, 1862, for Nassau; a bill of health given at Funchal for Nassau, in January, 1863; a clearance of the vessel at Nassau on March 20, 1863, for St. Johns, N. B.; a clearance of the vessel with a cargo of cotton from Wilmington, N. C., on March 10, 1863, for a voyage to Nassau, and a shipping agreement, executed at Nassau, Feb. 19, 1863, for a voyage from Nassau to St. Johns, N. B., and back.

The master, cook and steward were examined as witnesses. The master testified that the vessel was built in the Clyde, in December last, and was called The City of Dunedin till the voyage was begun, when her name was changed to The Granite City. The vessel left Glasgow in December, 1862. Her voyage was to be a round one, ending in any port of the United Kingdom. She touched at the Isle of Man, Cork, Madeira, and St. Thomas, whence she went to Nassau, where she discharged part of her cargo and cleared for St. Johns, N. B. The witness repeatedly refused to testify to what place the vessel was thence bound, but finally testified that "he was bound to run the blockade into some Confederate port, wherever he could get in, and if he could not get in to go elsewhere." He further testified that she ran into Wilmington, running the blockade, though fired at; discharged her cargo and took on board a cargo of cotton, which she took to Nassau, where she discharged it and took on board the cargo she had when captured. Various papers of the ship were burned during the chase by his orders.

Held by the Court. That the evidence very clearly establishes the guilt of the voyage. The destruction of her papers, her having violated the blockade on the preceding voyage, and her plain purpose and attempt to carry out this one by violating the blockade, amount to complete proof of the criminality of the enterprise she was engaged in.

Vessel and cargo condemned and forfeited.

Action for a Divorce for Cruel Treatment.

SUPERIOR COURT—SPECIAL TERM.

Before Justice Monell.

Sarah Fairbanks vs. Jonathan Fairbanks.—The plaintiff brings this action for a divorce from bed and board, on the ground of cruel and inhuman treatment. The marriage between plaintiff and defendant took place in 1853, and one child, a son, is the issue of the marriage.

It is alleged that shortly after the marriage the defendant commenced a systematic course of cruelty toward the plaintiff, wholly unendurable. It is alleged that on one occasion, having gone out to visit a sick friend, defendant upon her return knocked her down and choked her. That this treatment has continued with little or no cessation for some time, at times more violent than at others. One of the witnesses testified that on one occasion "plaintiff was so sick that she could scarcely hold up her head," defendant threw a cup of coffee in her face, and then told her she was only making believe sick.

The defendant's sister, who was the principal witness in his behalf, swore that, for all she knew, defendant had always treated his wife kindly, and only on one occasion had heard her complain of her husband having pinched her.

The trial was concluded to-day, and the decision of the Court was reserved.

Action of Replevin—Coal Oil the Cause of the Controversy.

SUPERIOR COURT.

Before Justice Moncrief.

The Hudson River Railroad Company vs. Wm. Grove.—This action is brought by the plaintiffs, in their capacity as common carriers, to recover a quantity of coal oil, in which they allege a qualified property. The complaint alleges that prior to June 1, 1862, they had in their possession a quantity of coal oil, which they had brought for hire to this City.

That on or about the first day of June one George Bakeman, otherwise called George Mavar, feloniously took and carried away from plaintiff's possession eight barrels of the said oil, and fraudulently and feloniously pretended to sell the article to defendant, and that the defendant feloniously and fraudulently received the same, knowing that they had been stolen, and that defendant converted the same to his own use, and refused, on demand, to deliver the same to plaintiffs.

Plaintiffs further allege that the oil was the property of R. L. Carter & Co., who, on demanding the delivery of the oil or the value thereof from the plaintiffs, received the value thereof from the plaintiffs, $150, and thereby the plaintiffs became vested with the title in said oil, and now claim in their own name the right to recover the value of the article from defendant.

The defendant admits that the purchase was made from Bakeman, but denies guilty knowledge of his having stolen the articles; and, further, that the articles were of little or no value, being, as alleged, worth only $25. The jury rendered a verdict for the plaintiff for $56, and as damages for detention $3.

T. M. North for plaintiffs; J. S. Bryan for defendant.

Decisions.

SUPREME COURT—GENERAL TERM.

Before Justices Sutherland, Leonard and Clerke.

Wilson vs. Holden.—Judgment reversed, and new trial ordered. Costs to abide event. Opinion by INGRAHAM.

Hoagland vs. Miller et al.—Judgment on foreclosure suit, to which Ford was a party, is a bar to this action. New trial ordered; costs to abide event, on the ground that there was a mistrial. Opinion by SUTHERLAND.

Rankin vs. Sacchi, impleaded.—Order reversed, without costs to either party. Opinion by SUTHERLAND.

Watson vs. Barker.—Hearing suspended until the judge at Circuit furnishes the findings of fact. Opinion by SUTHERLAND.

Liedhelf vs. Powers.—Judgment reversed and new trial granted; costs to abide event. Opinion by SUTHERLAND.

Justice SUTHERLAND announced that in consequence of the illness of one of the Judges, a large number of the cases were still undetermined, but would probably be decided next Monday, to which day the Court adjourned.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE REBELLION.

Our intelligence from Gen. GRANT'S army this morning is to the 31st ult.—one day later. At that date there had been no material change in the condition of affairs. The siege operations were being energetically pushed forward, and the army was in good condition and fine spirits. The rebels on the Rappahannock report that Gen. GRANT had fallen back to the Big Black to meet the rebel force under JOE JOHNSTON, but the report undoubtedly grows out of the fact that Gen. BLAIR, with his division, had been sent in that direction.

Advices from Vicksburgh to the 30th ult., in a dispatch to the Cincinnati Commercial, give an interesting account of the condition of affairs at that date. The idea of carrying the place by storm appeared to have been permanently abandoned. Earthworks were being erected to protect the men, and mines were being made to blow the face out of one or two of the rebel forts, which were otherwise unapproachable. In the meantime a heavy cannonading was kept up against the doomed city. New batteries had lately been put in position, and 150 guns were in almost constant play. A deserter who arrived within our lines on the morning of the 30th, represented affairs in the city as growing desperate. There were about 18,000 effective men there, two-thirds of whom were kept on the fortifications night and day. This deserter represented that he was sent out by PEMBERTON with verbal messages for JOHNSTON and LORING—the former somewhere between the Big Black and Jackson, and the latter near Port Gibson. PEMBERTON believed his rations would hold out for thirty days, but urged JOHNSTON to come to his relief within ten days at the furthest. Gen. BLAIR, before reported as having gone out toward the Big Black Bridge, had met no enemy, and the report of JOHNSTON being in the vicinity was disbelieved.

The question of reinforcements for Gen. GRANT is partly answered by the following paragraph from the Chicago Post: "The Chicago Irish Legion, which for a long time has been stationed near La Grange, Tenn., has gone to Vicksburgh, with other reinforcements, for Gen. GRANT. It would be contraband to say how many troops have gone and are going in the same direction, but they are 'a good many.'"

It is stated that a portion of Admiral FARRAGUT'S fleet recently proceeded up the Red River to Shrieveport, where the rebels had a Navy-yard, and did effective service. Two iron-clads of great power were found upon the stocks, and blown up and destroyed. The iron for these vessels is said to have been sent from Richmond, and it is believed that had they been completed they would have been powerful enough to have destroyed our Mississippi fleet.

We learn from Murfreesboro that the rebel force opposed to Gen. ROSECRANS now appears to be massed along his immediate front. Scouts have scoured the country on the left and in the rear, and found no rebels, nor heard of any. A mounted force of the enemy advanced on the 3d on the Manchester Pike road and engaged our vedettes, but retired after a skirmish lasting about an hour.

We have this morning a detailed account of Col. KILPATRICK'S successful raid from Gloucester Point. He crossed the country between the York and Rappahannock Rivers, making an extensive circuit through the garden-spot of Virginia—a section which our troops have never before penetrated. Col. KILPATRICK made a large capture of negroes, horses and other valuable property. He did not lose a man.

We have advices from Newbern, N. C., to the 1st inst., by the arrival at this port of the steamer Ellen S. Terry. Everything is reported. Gen. WILD, in his enterprise of organizing a negro brigade, is recruiting with very good success.

It is stated in our Washington dispatches that an order has been forwarded relieving Acting Admiral WILKES, and designating Commodore LARDNER as his successor. We have already announced the fact that Admiral DUPONT is to be succeeded on the South Atlantic station by Admiral FOOTE.

The President has revoked Gen. BURNSIDE'S order suppressing the Chicago Times, and the General last evening notified the publishers that its publication could be continued. The General has also notified the proprietors of the World that he has revoked the order forbidding the circulation of that paper in his Department.

GENERAL NEWS.

At the meeting of the Board of Aldermen, yesterday, the City Inspector was requested to report by what authority he is cleaning the streets, and what disposition is made of the sweepings. A resolution was passed to have a story added to the City Hall, to make it correspond in height with the new Court-house—the addition to be made when the Court-house shall be completed. Another resolution was adopted, appropriating $10,000 to celebrate the ensuing Fourth of July, under the auspices of a Joint Committee of fourteen. Messrs. Farley, Reed, Boole, Ottiwell, Fox, Henry and Mitchell were appointed from this Board. The Mayor's veto of the resolution to increase the salary of the Public Administrator from $1,250 to $5,000 per annum was overruled, 12 to 4. On the resolution from the Councilmen, directing the Park Barracks to be removed, Mr. HARDY said the barracks were used for a prison, and otherwise illegitimately. Mr. OTTIWELL said a visit to them would satisfy any one that they were used for legitimate and good purposes, mostly as a hospital for sick and wounded soldiers. Mr. FROMENT regretted that ultra partisan feeling should be so manifest in a resolution of this character. It was referred to the Committee on National Affairs. The Board adjourned to 2 o'clock P. M. on next Monday.

In the Board of Councilmen the Corporation Counsel was requested to report what amount of fines and fees have been collected by the Corporation-Attorney since the 1st of January, what has been received for compromising fines and suits for penalties, and how the money has been disposed of. A communication was received from the City Inspector, stating that he has granted requisitions to the street-cleaning contractor for his pay only up to April 15, and that he was obliged to grant requisitions during periods when the streets were not properly cleared of dirt, by virtue of section seven of the contract, which simply required of the contractor that "the streets shall be kept conveniently passable for vehicles during the Winter," and the crosswalks and gutters be kept free from snow and ice. The letter was ordered on file. On an ordinance to appoint the New-Yorker Journal a Corporation paper there was considerable discussion. It was urged on partisan grounds, but Messrs. HAYES and JONES insisted that it would be both partisan and proper to substitute the Journal for the Demokrat, as there were already two German Corporation papers, and three of that kind would be too many. They also insisted that the Herald ought to be a Corporation paper, on the ground of large circulation. This latter view was supported by Mr. BRANDON. Finally, it was voted to substitute the Journal for the Demokrat, and the Herald for the Evening Past. The resolution from the other Board, authorizing an outlay of not more than $2,500 for receiving each returning regiment of volunteers, was lost. Mr. GROSS opposed it, citing the fact of the omission of receptions to the German regiments as an evidence of partiality on the part of the Receiving Committee. He thought there was still time left to cover this fault. The Board concurred in ordering an issue of stock to be made to pay for extending the Central Park, pursuant to the order of the Supreme Court. Adjourned to 4 o'clock P. M. next Monday.

A regular meeting of the Chamber of Commerce was held yesterday. Communications from the Chambers of Commerce of Liverpool and Glasgow were read, and a letter from Mr. REED, relating to marine signals, was received.

The Grand Lodge of Freemasons continued their session yesterday. Grand officers were elected and installed for the ensuing year with very imposing ceremonies. The Grand Lodge chartered five new lodges in this City, and continued dispensations to such military lodges as might deserve the same. The Grand Lodge will meet again this morning.

At the billiard tournament yesterday, Seereiter beat Estephe and Tieman, Estephe beat Deery, and Foley beat Goldthwaite. The grand score now stands: Kavanagh won three, lost none; Seereiter won three, lost two; Fox won three, lost none; Estephe won one, lost three; Tieman won one, lost two; Deery lost three, won none; Goldthwaite won one, lost two; Foley won two, lost two.

The Troy Times says that "a Committee of colored men from that city waited upon Gov. SEYMOUR last week, and asked him whether he would favor the organization of regiments of black men. He replied that he should not, saying that he had too much sympathy for the blacks to do so, as the position they must occupy would be one of extreme danger, and would lead to dreadful and unnecessary sacrifice of life."

The case of SIDNEY KIRTLAND, arrested by the Provost-Marshal as a rebel spy, and brought before Judge MCCUNN on a writ of habeas corpus, was continued before the Judge yesterday, and a decision will be rendered to-day. The question involved is important as deciding the right of the military or civil authorities to the custody of a spy in time of war.

The price of Gold fell 1 ₱ cent. and the speculative Shares rose 2 ₱ cent. yesterday on the Stock Exchange. Bills on London 160 ₱ cent. Money in easier supply to the Stock Brokers. Government Stock of 1881 rose to 104, and the sales of the New Loan amounted to $1,830,400.

Breadstuffs were in less demand yesterday; Flour and Wheat were declining. Provisions were in good request at generally uniform prices. Sugars and Whisky were more sought after. Cotton was active and buoyant. Transactions in most other articles were restricted. Moderate freight engagements were effected.

The New Peace Party—Its Candor and Consistency.

Fighting shy is poor business. It is manly to take the bull by the horns. FERNANDO has done it. The boldness and the consistency with which he now comes out against the war are admirable. Of course we all know it will end in his biting the dust; but then, the straightforwardness and the pluck of the thing—how splendidly it shows off against the shivering fellows in the background!

There was no dodging in this Peace Convention. It met the real issue of the day squarely. In as distinct terms as the language affords, it denounced both the principle and the practice of the war; both its inception and its prosecution. In its third regular resolution it declared that "Under the Constitution there is no power in the Federal Government to coerce the States, or any number of them by military force;" and, in its ninth, that "by the continuance of the war, the Government itself will be utterly and irrevocably subverted." In its adopted Address to the People, it declared that the war is "the curse of the age in which we live;" that it was "unconstitutional, and could not be prosecuted constitutionally;" that "the hand of God is uplifted against us;" that "the war cannot succeed—we have been beaten—we cannot conquer the South;" that "to support the war is to support the policies of the war;" that "there is no difference between War Democrats and War Republicans;" and that "the only road to Democratic victory is through peace." Certainly all this is sufficiently explicit; and we have the prospect that at last the people are to get an opportunity to pronounce at the ballot-box upon the primary instead of the secondary questions of the day—upon what concerns patriots instead of what concerns partisans.

The Convention took altogether too much pains to defy the Government at Washington. It seemed to imagine that it was engaging in a movement which would provoke persecution by the National authorities. This was quite superfluous. The Government could not if it would, and we believe would not if it could, balk this movement by any interposition. The movement, so long as it avoids all violent opposition to the Government, is perfectly legitimate. Though there were some two or three speakers who did not content themselves with simply denouncing the Administration, but sought apparently to stir up armed revolt against it, the Convention in its organic capacity manifested no such spirit. It instigated no violence, but reserved its appeal to the ballot-box only. No truly loyal man will complain of that. The ultimate sovereignty resides with the people alone; and just as the people through their constitutional organs—the National Legislature and the Executive—accepted the war, just so through the same organs they may, if they please, in due time, repudiate it. Though no portion of them have any political right to resist with violence the Tax bills and the Army and Navy bills, they have a complete political right to send, if they peaceably can, Senators and Representatives to Washington who shall repeal these acts, and thus close the war. Of course we consider that such popular action would be recreant and ruinous. But the people have an unquestionable right to make up their mind to it, if they please, and then, through their chosen constitutional agents, to carry it into effect. When that point is once reached, we shall simply say that peace could not come too quickly—that a Republican Government which had to rely on such a people, was no longer worth saving.

The people, then, are not to be debarred from the discussion, or, if they please, the adoption of peace measures; and the formation of a Peace party is perfectly legitimate. The men at the head of this movement need fear no molestation, so long as they organize for political and not for military purposes, and so long as they ply argument, and not violence, or instigations to violence. Nothing better need be desired than that the sense of the people shall be fairly taken on the cardinal questions thus presented; and every truly loyal man, we are sure, will be perfectly willing to abide the verdict.

The Convention has rendered good service in protesting so distinctly against the inconsistency of pretending to support the war, and yet standing out against its necessary consequences. In its address it says with peculiar force. "If the General Government have the moral or constitutional right to make war upon the States for its own salvation, then it is without restraint as to the means used directly for that purpose, except in the manner of using those means." In other words, a rightful war necessarily carries with it all the powers and means allowable by the recognized laws of war; and to oppose these latter is, in fact, to oppose the war itself. This is indisputably true. There is no such thing as a mixture of war liabilities and civil rights. If the Southern Secessionist is an enemy to be warred against, he is not a citizen to be protected. He has no civil rights, and is exposed to all the liabilities any other enemy would be under the laws of war. War, if it be war at all, it is an ultima ratio, the last resort, a supreme exclusive appeal; and it is absurd to talk of the constitutional privileges or immunities of those against whom it is waged. To recognize these is to recognize that the war has no legitimate character. The peace leaders, therefore, tell their brother Democrats, with complete reason, that they are bound either to sustain the Government in the exercise of every war power, or to pronounce the war wrong and join them in seeking to end it.

Here in fact lies the great practical duty of the crisis—the only one which can justify the formation of party lines. Before this gigantic issue between war and peace, all others shrink into insignificance. They can all safely be left to the free play of public opinion and its moral pressure upon generals and rulers, which is sure to prevail sooner or later. At worst, their effects can be but transient. But the question of peace or war involves no less than the perpetual destinies of the Republic. The consequences that hang on its decision are of infinite moment. It is every man's duty to shape his public conduct with reference to them solely, overlooking every other consideration. If he is for war, he should know no party but the party of thorough-going, out-and-out, unconditional, unyielding war. If he is for peace, he should decently acknowledge it, and consistently act with those who make peace their party watchword.

Prospects at Vicksburgh.

Of course, we do not give any credit to the rebel report that Gen. GRANT is preparing to raise the siege at Vicksburgh. Neither the rebel Press nor the rebel military leaders know much about Gen. GRANT'S besieging operations, as the absurd telegrams we have received from the South show. Their communication with Vicksburgh itself is only by strategem, and, in our rear, they have no force within many miles of our army.

An abandonment of the siege of Vicksburgh, from any cause whatever, would be most disastrous in its bearings upon the Western campaign, and upon the hopes of the country. It would postpone indefinitely all hope of opening the Mississippi River. Occurring at this season of the year, it would compel the retirement of GRANT'S army to Memphis, and of Gen. BANKS' army to New-Orleans. It would give the rebels strength and courage to attack ROSECRANS. It would destroy the prospect of another campaign in the Mississippi Valley until such time as the army raised by conscription shall be in the field. It would give a new lease of life, and a renewed grasp of power to the Southern Confederacy.

There could be no reason whatever given for the raising of the siege of Vicksburgh—no reason but one, and that is, the insufficient strength of GRANT'S force. He is in an excellent position; he is within easy reach of supplies; his communications are perfect; he has the cooperation of a fleet. The enemy, whether at Jackson or in Vicksburgh, are placed under the greatest disadvantages, both as regards reinforcements, supplies and communications, and JOHNSTON'S army at least as regards position.

We have had various announcements that GRANT was receiving such reinforcements as he needed; and a Memphis dispatch declares that he says he has all the troops he can use to advantage. We trust it is true that GRANT did say this; and we hope the statement that he had received reinforcements has more truth to it than some of those reinforcing telegrams frequently sent us before a battle, only to be denied after it. When GRANT landed with his army on this side of the Mississippi River, some forty days ago, he had between fifty and sixty thousand men; and we suppose his various battles and attacks since that time have cost him close upon ten thousand men. This would leave him still a respectably-sized army. But the rebels have certainly a force of fifteen thousand inside of Vicksburgh, and the forces of LORING and JOHNSTON, originally nearly twenty thousand in number, have been growing stronger every day for the last twenty days. It would undoubtedly be very difficult work for JOHNSTON to get in a position where he could operate against GRANT; but while GRANT'S army confronts the most formidable works, with a strong garrison behind them, it is an ugly matter to have a rebel force of even thirty thousand gathered twenty miles in his rear.

It would be a terrible thing (if GRANT needs reinforcements) for the Washington authorities to fail to furnish them. We have a score of detachments in West Tennessee, Kentucky and Missouri that could be easily and quickly sent him; aye, we have troops stationed in cities of the Free States on the Ohio River, and as high up as the Lakes, which had much better be before or behind the enemy at Vicksburgh. The Government can furnish no excuse whatever for the dreadful disaster of a failure at Vicksburgh.

American Affairs in England.

The debate in the British House of Lords on May 18, in reference to the English vessels captured by our cruisers, was one of more than common interest. It was opened by the Marquis of Clanricarde speaking in favor of his motion for copies of the proceedings of our Prize Courts, in a speech most remarkable for the untruth of its statements and the recklessness of its charges. The ground of his bringing up the subject was, as he said, that "the whole trade of England with the Gulf of Mexico and the West Indies was at present arrested." This statement was, of course, a mere rhetorical flourish; for no seizure of vessels by our cruisers could have had any serious effect upon the lawful trade to that part of the world, and we have yet to see any signs that the illegitimate trade has been checked by such seizure, or by anything else. Now and then, it is true, we notice that some blockade runner has been forced to make his appearance before the Insolvent Courts; but where the profits are so large, the failure of one or two will not intimidate the rest.

The rest of the speech was worthy of this beginning. The speaker charged our Government with a design to stop the legitimate trade of England, not only with foreign but with her own ports. He charged us with violating treaty stipulations in refusing to allow shipments of coal in British vessels from New-York to Nassau. He charged our Government with "grossly violating" the law of blockade, and with "actually opening the mail bags in the hope that letters might be discovered which would affect the character of the ship." He berated our Government for handing the cases over to the action of the Prize Courts; and denounced the conduct of our Prize Courts as "grossly illegal and unjust," with especial reference to the action of the Court in this District as to Mr. REDGATE, one of the claimants in the case of the Peterhoff, saying that, though he was a British subject, our Court had deprived him of his rights as such, because he had a residence in the Confederate States.

Most of these points in the Marquis of Clanricade's speech were fully answered by Earl RUSSELL. He showed quite clearly that they were without foundation; that so far from our Government having violated international law, it had always fully acknowledged its rules and obligations; that in refusing to allow British vessels to load coal, &c., for Nassau, we were only doing with them the same that we did with our own vessels, and that the Law Officers of the Crown, "watching carefully all the decisions, said there was no rational ground of complaint as to the decisions of the Prize Courts of America." He did not believe that our Government had any intention to disturb or prevent English commerce.

He might have added that Mr. REDGATE, though born in England, became a resident of Texas before it separated from Mexico, and was a citizen of Texas when it was annexed to the United States; that he had been a member of the Texan Legislature, and only left that State since the rebellion; and that he appealed to our Court not on the ground of being an English subject, but because he desired to be and remain a citizen of the United States. He might have added also that, so far from opening the mails, our Government had delivered them up unopened, having to oppose the current of public opinion here in so doing.

These two speeches were followed by a brief one from Earl DERBY, who entirely concurred in Earl RUSSELL'S positions, that they "ought not rashly and hastily to assume that the Supreme Courts of the United States would give decisions contrary to law and justice," and that in regard to the interruptions to commerce they "ought to make every allowance for the very natural provocation which the Americans must naturally feel for the very large extent to which the contraband trade had been carried on from England and from other countries into the Confederate ports."

We are heartily glad to see that the debate took such a turn as this. If the English people can place themselves in this state of mind, so as not to make hasty presumptions against us, and so as to make any sort of allowance for the provocation which the conduct of a part of the English people occasions, there will be no danger of collision between the two countries.

CAMP FOLLOWERS AND THE CONSCRIPTION.—Gen. HUNTER has just issued from Port Royal, a General Order which sounds more like business than his letter to JEFF DAVIS. Its substantial part is in the words following:

"Many hundreds of able bodied men, liable to the draft, and not in the employ of the Government, being now within the limits of this Department, pursuing schemes of private profit and speculations based on the necessities of the service, it is hereby ordered that all such persons who may be found within the limits of this Department within twenty days from the date of this General Order, shall be drafted to fill up the weakened regiments from the respective States to which they belong, now serving in this Department; and all such persons belonging to States not represented here by regiments will be drafted to serve in the regiment numerically the weakest."

This may at first sight look a little hard upon those who have gone down to the sunny shores of the Palmetto State to seek their fortunes; but, if there be any class of citizens that should be rigidly held to their duty under the law for organizing the militia, it is the class included in this order. These persons have from the beginning swarmed about the camps of our armies, speculating, in every conceivable mode, in "the necessities of the service." They have purchased favoritism from officials of easy virtue, enjoyed Government transportation by land and water for their merchandise, been protected in their lucrative, and often illicit, trade by the guns of Union soldiers, and these soldiers, in return, they have fleeced by cruel and scandalous extortion. If the example set by HUNTER should be followed in other Departments, and the Government aid in the enforcement of the principle, at least ten thousand men might be brought under the operation of the Conscription act, who otherwise will escape altogether the burdens and hazards of a war which so far has only served to enrich them.

Many of the speculating camp-followers upon whom this order bears will avail themselves of the chance given by the twenty days' grace, and will close up their "schemes of private profit," and make haste to ship for a more salubrious clime. Arriving North after the enrollment now making is completed, they will stand a fair chance of escaping altogether the risks of conscription. Care should be taken by enrolling officers to watch this end of the line, so that these migrating patriots be not overlooked in making up the honorable roll of our country's defenders.

THE POLICE COMMISSIONERS.—Under the apprehension, perhaps, that the charges alleged against the Police Commissioners of this City, upon which Gov. SEYMOUR was expected to eject them summarily from office last January, would not stand the test, nearly six months have been taken by their accusers to frame a new indictment against them. The "additional charges" are of frightful length, and would fill nearly four of our columns. Their excessive detail, if not their strength otherwise, is relied on, probably, to do the desired work. We furnish an abstract of the charges to-day. Gov. SEYMOUR, it will be seen, gives the accused Commissioners till the 13th of this month to prepare and file answers to the indictment placed in his hands, after which he proposes to go into the trial of the truth of the charges.

AFFAIRS IN FRANCE.

The Polish Question—The French Elections—Speculations on American Matters—Glorification of W. Cornell Jewett.

From Our Own Correspondent.

PARIS, Friday, May 22, 1863.

In regard to Poland the situation to-day seems to be this, that England has proposed an armistice, which has been accepted by France, and thus far refused by Austria. But even if Austria adheres to it, the two parties mostly concerned—Russia and Poland—will refuse it, and then what? Shall we have a European war or not? In the meantime the insurrection is perhaps more than maintaining itself—it is extending daily over more ground, and the Poles at Paris are absolutely certain that it will yet extend further. Oh! every one exclaims, if the Mexican business were only terminated!

But this Mexican business does not appear to be near its termination, as the acts of the Government themselves show, for not only are considerable reinforcements being sent to Gen. FOREY, but they are also sending out, in pieces, several gunboats, to be used on the water which partly surrounds the City of Mexico. But if these gunboats are no better than those carried and put up on the Lake Garda during the campaign in Lombardy four years ago, one or two good Parrott or Whitworth guns in the right place will make short work of them.

In everything that pertains to news in regard to Mexico, the Government exercises a most annoying and useless rigor. Beside the New-York journals which have been lately suppressed quite frequently, the Belgian and English journals are also frequently confiscated at the frontier. Some time ago I told you of the annoying perquisition, or domiciliary visit which the police had made at the house of M. MONTLUC, Mexican Consul at Paris, and at those of several journalists who occupied themselves with Mexican affairs; but at that time it was said that nothing compromising had been found, and that the affair had been dropped. It seems that this was not true, for M. MONTLUC and four of those persons who received the visits of the police, are about to be tried before the Police Court for having "practiced manœuvres and kept up communications with the exterior, with the view of troubling the public peace and of exciting hate and disgust for the Government of the Emperor."

The example of M. THIERS in allowing his name to be used as a candidate for Deputy, is being followed by most of the living illustrations of the late Governments of France. Thus, besides the eminent statesman just mentioned, the following distinguished names are on the list of candidates of the Opposition: Messrs. Berryer, Legitimist; Ouffon Barrot, Orleanist; Count de Montalembert, Legitimist; Count de Remusat, Orleanist; Fresion, Minister under the Republic of 1848; Barthelmy St. Hilaire, Dufaure, Nogent St. Laurens, Casimir Périer, Emile Perière, Isaac Perière, Marie, Prof. Laboulaye, (at Strasbourg,) Jules de Lasteyrie, St. Marc Girardin, the Marquis Clermont, Tonnerre, and others. These, added to the list of the famous "Five" of the last Chamber, if all elected, will make a most powerful and dangerous opposition. The Minister of the Interior, M. DE PERSIGNY, who is charged with the supervision of the election, and who is naturally anxious that the Government candidate should be elected, publishes this morning in the Moniteur, a violent attack against M. THIERS, in the form of an address to the Prefect of the Seine, charging this officer to use all his ability to defeat M. THIERS. But the fury of the Minister will only increase the number of M. THIERS' friends, and his election may be regarded as a certainty. Since yesterday, the name of M. THIERS has been posted on the walls of this, the Second District, printed on blue paper, in the following form:

Second Circumscription,
Election for Deputy the 31st of May
M. THIERS.

But the Government this year permits a certain amount of liberty to candidates in the publication of electoral addresses, and many of the candidates, besides publishing their addresses in the journals, stick them also on the walls and inclose them in envelopes. All this is giving an extraordinary interest to the election, which cannot prove otherwise than profitable to the candidates of the opposition.

You know by this time that Mr. WILLIAM CORNELL JEWETT is again in Europe on a self-appointed peace mission, and you have no doubt observed that by some means or other the Continental telegraph has been much occupied in acquainting the public with his movements. The France, the journal of the Viscount de LAGUERONNIERE, Senator of the Empire, a Bonapartist organ, which prides itself upon its correct intelligence, contains in its issue of Monday last the following astounding leader on Mr. JEWETT and his mission:

"It is rare that a wise and judicious idea should remain long unacknowledged. The truth, whatever may be the ardor of certain people in perverting or smothering it, will always finish by triumphing over error and falsehood, and after spending much useless time and labor, people are obliged to come back to the policy which they ought first to have adopted, if not for an economy of time, which as the English say is money, at least in honor of human reason.

We see that an important personage of the Democratic party in America, Mr. WILLIAM CORNELL JEWETT, has made the voyage to London in order to bring about an Anglo-French mediation in American affairs, the basis of which is to be found in the reply of Mr. SEWARD to M. DROUYN DE LHUYS. [A telegraphic dispatch had just stated that Mr. JEWETT had determined on this line of policy.] Mr. JEWETT has addressed to the English people an appeal, in which he traces the history of the events in America since the period when France made the proposition of mediation to which England and Russia did not think it their duty to adhere otherwise than indirectly, and with reserves which rendered an official proposition impossible. It is to this project of mediation that the honorable American Democrat demands that England should give in her adhesion.

If our memory serves us, the project of the Cabinet of the Tuileries was but indifferently received by that part of the French Press which pretends to be liberal, and which has shown, with too much éclat on the subject of the measures adopted by Mr. LINCOLN in regard to Slavery, how little liberal they are; and by the English Press, jealous in seeing us conquer abroad an influence which they have always sought to absorb for their own country.

But here is a man who evidently represents that great party of public opinion in the United States, which is called Democratic, and who returns to the project of which M. DROUYN DE LHUYS is the author, and it is to the public opinion of England that he addresses himself, as if he were certain he should be well received.

It would be difficult to admit that Mr. JEWETT should have attempted such an enterprise without possessing, on the intentions, the thoughts or the desires of the Government of Washington certain information which authorizes him to think that he will not be disavowed in the measures he may adopt. It is not also less possible to suppose that the Cabinet of London is ignorant of the presence of Mr. JEWETT in England or of the nature of his project.

We are justified, therefore, in the conclusion, at least by inference, that the American Government, tired of the war, exhausted in its resources, uncertain of the future, menaced even in the present, has permitted this outside action in the hope of reconciling the interests of the North and South, of extinguishing mutual hatreds, of bringing back peace to unhappy America, and then seeking to appropriate it to its profit in case circumstances and the condition of public opinion will permit.

Thus it is seen that after all it is a triumph of French policy, of that frank, moderate and really liberal policy which is the only good one, and which alone merits sacrifices, because it is the only one to assure the peace, the prosperity and the dignity of nations."

The death of the wife of LAMARTINE, and the serious illness of the distinguished poet himself, has produced a most painful sensation in Paris, for not only was the deceased one of the most esteemed and meritorious of women, but her husband, whatever may have been his faults, is still widely loved and respected.

WASHINGTON, Thursday, June 4.

MOVEMENTS OF THE REBELS.

A party of contrabands direct from Culpepper, who arrived at Union Mills yesterday, report that a few days since three rebel brigades of infantry arrived at Culpepper from the Rappahannock, and the soldiers said they were going to Richmond. The bridge over the Rapidan has been rebuilt, so that trains pass over the road from Culpepper to Richmond, via Gordonsville.

OFFICERS FOR COLORED TROOPS.

The Board of Examiners for officers to organize and command the colored troops is yet in session, at No. 469 Fourteenth-street. The Board appears determined that none but competent officers shall have the position, and there is no appeal from the Board. The test is not a severe one. First, the applicant must furnish evidence of physical ability; second, good moral character. He must also have a good knowledge of the common English branches of education—reading, writing, arithmetic, geography and history—and, if he has been in the army, he must have some knowledge of tactics.

DISMISSED.

Capt. GEORGE E. WALLACE, Company A, Seventy-ninth Indiana volunteers, has been dismissed the service.

THE VICKSBURGH WOUNDED.

Assistant Surgeon-Gen. WOOD telegraphs to the Department here that the wounded from Vicksburgh are being removed as rapidly as possible to hospitals at Memphis and elsewhere. Large quantities of ice and other comforts have been forwarded from St. Louis for the use of the wounded.

ARMS FOR THE ARMLESS.

The Medical Department is now prepared to furnish, free of charge, artificial arms to such soldiers as have lost their natural ones in battle.

TO BE HUNG.

The sentence of the Court-martial in the case of WM. T. WALLER, convicted as a spy, has been approved, and he is ordered to be hung.

DEATHS.

The following deaths of soldiers have been reported to-day:

J. L. Haskill, Co. K, 7th Maine.
A. C. Truman, Co. G, 152d New-York.
Charles L. Decker, Co. D, 134th New-York.
Hiram Chrisler, Co. F, 2d Massachusetts.

DISPATCHES TO THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

WASHINGTON, Thursday, June 4.

ADMIRAL WILKES RELIEVED.

The order has already been forwarded relieving Acting Admiral WILKES and designating Commodore LARDNER as his successor.

PROMOTION OF COL. GRIERSON.

Col. THOMAS H. GRIERSON has been appointed a Brigadier-General for gallant and distinguished services.

AFFAIRS ACROSS THE RAPPAHANNOCK.

Yesterday morning the rebel pickets were considerably strengthened in front of the Rappahannock.

A rebel deserter is represented as stating that since the prohibition to fish in the river the enemy are considerably curtailed of their fresh luxuries.

NEWSPAPERS IN THE ARMY.

The soldiers of the army of the Potomac will be gratified to learn that a reform is to be made in the matter of supplying newspapers and periodicals. The cost of any paper sold is not to exceed five cents per copy—one-half of the amount which is now charged by extortioners. The privilege of acting as newspaper agents is to be confined to discharged or disabled soldiers, and given to the highest bidders, the amount of the offer to be paid into the proper hands as a hospital fund.

It is understood that the privilege of supplying provisions and other stores to officers' messes at headquarters, is also to be awarded to the highest bidder on similar terms.

VISITORS TO THE ARMY.

Gen. NYE, Governor of Nevada, and Judge MOTT, of New-York, are visitors at headquarters, the guests of the Ninety-third New-York Volunteers.

THE INDIANS IN UTAH.

Information has just been received here, showing that in a fight which recently took place in Utah between the California Volunteers and a party of Indians at a settlement called Battle Creek the Mormons assisted the Indians, one of their number, a man by the name of POWERS, bringing the Indians into town and showing them the whereabouts of the volunteers, who were in only small force, not expecting an attack. After the attack was made the Mormons gathered together to enjoy the sport; over two hundred looking quietly on in a contest, where the Indians outnumbered the volunteers ten to one. Fortunately the arrival of reinforcements saved them from massacre, though for three hours they kept up the unequal contest.

Col. CONNER makes a similar complaint of the Mormons in his official report of the Battle of Bear River.

NAVAL PROMOTIONS.

Acting Master ZABRISKIE is ordered to the command of the steamer Jamaica, and Lieut.-Commander HORNE C. BLAKE to that of the steam gunboat Katan, at Baltimore, in appreciation of his gallantry in the defence of the Hatteras.

DISMISSED.

By direction of President LINCOLN, Second Lieut. CHARLES LYMAN, of the Fourteenth Connecticut Volunteers, has been dismissed from the service for furnishing the descriptive list of a man of his company to an unauthorized person, in disregard of General Orders on the subject. This order, as an example, was read to every company and regiment in the army.

STEAM MACHINERY.

The Navy Department has advertised for steam machinery proposals, to be received until the 15th inst. The Department will consider the propositions of parties who may choose to offer for machinery of equal power, or plans or specifications of their own, in place of those advertised.

TREASURY DECISIONS.

The following decisions have been made by the Secretary of the Treasury of questions arising from appeals made by importers from the decisions of Collectors relating to proper classifications under the Tariff act of July, 1862;

As to the width of silk velvets, the Secretary expresses the opinion that selvage, being manufactured and bought and sold with the velvet, is an integral part of the fabric, and should be included in computing the width to ascertain the square yard.

Crape trimmings, understood by experts as silk and cotton trimmings, of which silk is the component material of chief value, are subject to a duty of 40 per centum.

American grown cotton, imported from Havre, but not identified as such in accordance with the laws and regulations of the Department, was properly charged a duty rate of ¾ per cent. per pound.

Cotton bagging, understood to apply exclusively to articles used, or suitable to be used, for the baleing of cotton, and also flax yarn, must each pay a duty of 35 per centum ad valorem.

SWINDLED BY TICKET AGENTS.

Some of the returning New-York soldiers have been swindled by outside ticket agents at the Washington railroad station, being overcharged for their fares. In cases coming to the knowledge of agents of the State of New-York, restitution has been obtained. Soldiers belonging to other parts of the country have been likewise victimized.

ON THE WAY HOME.

The Thirty-seventh and Thirty-eighth New-York regiments left here to-day on the 6 o'clock P. M. train for New-York.

PROVOST-MARSHAL OF MARYLAND.

Maj. GRANVILLE O. HALLER, of the Seventh United States Infantry, left here to-day to enter upon his duties as Provost-Marshal for the State of Maryland.

HORSES.

An army order from Headquarters, Army of the Potomac, recently issued, says no horse should be left in the possession of a disloyal resident of any part of the country occupied by the enemy, this species of property being contraband of war, and liable to be used by guerrillas, spies, or messengers in the enemy's service.

APPOINTMENT.

Capt. JOHN A. ELLISON, of Pennsylvania, has been appointed Assistant Quartermaster of Volunteers, and assigned to duty at Camp Convalescent, Alexandria.

COLORED RECRUITS.

Orders have been issued by the Commander of the Military Department of Washington to muster into the service all colored recruits who may be presented in companies of 64. As soon as they are mustered in they are clothed and sent to Mason's Island, where a camp is being formed. Over one thousand are enrolling. Two companies are mustered in, and will soon be officered and ready for the field.

CHANGES.

The Sixteenth Virginia Loyal regiment has been disbanded, and the men mustered out of service.

The Thirty-ninth New-York regiment (Garibaldi Guards) has been consolidated into five companies, and half the officers mustered out of the service.

The First District of Columbia regiment has been consolidated into four companies, and a proportionate number of officers mustered out.

THE BLOCKADING SERVICE.

Official Report of the Destruction of the Rebel Steamer Cuba.

WASHINGTON, Thursday, June 4.

The following report has been received by Secretary WELLES:

UNITED STATES SHIP DE SOTO, GULF OF MEXICO, May 18, 1863.

SIR: I have the honor to inform you that, yesterday at noon, I discovered the smoke of a steamer, and stood for it. Soon after we made the steamer, and pressed after it to the very extent of our power. At 6 P. M. she stopped, and two boats pushed off from her, carrying her officers and crew. Immediately lowered and took one of the steamer's principal officers as a security for the lives of my own men, and then boarded the steamer. As soon as the boats had got alongside of her, the flames burst out, as I had anticipated, when I hoisted the "recall." Afterward, having had the assurance that there was no danger of her blowing up, I went near enough to the burning ship to lead our hose on board; but all efforts to suppress the flames were unavailing, and by sunset the famous Confederate ship Cuba sank beneath the waters of the Gulf, in lat. 29° 47', lon. 87° 58'. It is estimated upon reliable authority that the cargo of the Cuba was worth in Havana nearly $400,000, and if landed in Alabama, would have been worth from a million to a million and a quarter. I have her officers and crew on board, and shall deliver them to the custody of the authorities at Key West. I am, Sir, very respectfully, your obedient servant,

WM. W. WALKER,
Captain U. S. Navy.

Hon GIDEON WELLES, Secretary of Navy, Washington.

OTHER CAPTURES.

WASHINGTON, Thursday, June 4.

The United States gunboat Tioga, under date of April 23, reports the capture, 50 miles north of Little Bahamas Bank, of the British registering sloop Justina. She had no flag, but the Captain admitted that he had thrown an English and a rebel flag overboard during the chase. She had on board eight bales of cotton.

The United States steamer Huntsville reports the capture, on May 19, of the Spanish steamer Union, of and from Havana, bound to Mobile—a tug-boat, of 115 tons, built in Philadelphia, and recently used at Havana as a tow-boat. She had an assorted cargo of considerable value.

The steamer Octarora reports the seizure on the 22d ult. of the English steamer Eagle, from Nassau, N. P., ostensibly bound to St. John, N. B., with a cargo of assorted merchandise. She is an iron paddle wheel, schooner-rigged steamer of 147 tons burthen.

The United States gunboat Tahoma captured the sloop Crazy Jane on the 8th ult., in Tampa Bay, loaded with turpentine and cotton.

The United States gunboat Konawha captured on the 15th of May the British brigantine Comet, with an assorted cargo.

On the 27th of April the United States ship De Soto captured the schooner Clarida from Havana. This vessel is supposed to be one belonging to the United States which was seized by the rebels at the commencement of the war.

The Colorado reports that the gunboat Kennebec captured on the 4th of May the schooner Juniper, from Havana, bound to Mobile, with an assorted cargo.

The Huntsville reports the capture, on the 13th of May, of the Confederate schooner A. J. Hodge, of Mobile, from Nassau, bound to a rebel port, with an assorted cargo.

The United States flagship Magnolia reports the capture, by the tender of that vessel, of the schooner Oliver S. Breeze.

The United States frigate Colorado captured on the 9th of May, the schooner Sea Lion, from Mobile, bound to Havana, with a cargo of 292 bales of cotton.

A ROMANCE OF THE EMPIRE CITY!

THE SUNDAY DISPATCH
FOR JUNE 7, 1863,
Will contain the Opening Chapters of a thrilling Original Story from Life in this City, entitled
THE SECRET DESTROYER; OR, THE
FORTUNES OF THE CLEVELANDS.
By Capt. WHEELER, U. S. A.,
Author of "Running the Blockade," (printed in the Sun,) "The Web of Fate," (published in the New-York Ledger,) &c., &c.

This Story is a startling record of the various fortunes and exciting episodes in the lives of the members of a well-known family in the City of New-York. The scenes are from life, and present a series of thrilling pictures of the mysteries and crimes that are too often covered over in this great Metropolis by wealth and seeming respectability. Many of the incidents will be recognized by the intelligent reader, who will thus have a key which will enable him to locate the characters who figure in this exciting revelation. Without going into a full synopsis of the Story, it may not be amiss to say that among the leading characters who figure in this Life Drama are: AN ORPHAN BOY, who has been robbed of his inheritance by his uncle, and turned into the street to shift for himself. A FULTON-MARKET BUTCHER—a rich character. A RICH MERCHANT, who lives on Fifth-avenue in princely style, instead of being in Sing Sing, where he ought to be, if justice had her due. THE WIFE OF THE MERCHANT, who has her own secrets, and has to pay liberally to avoid an awkward exposure. A CLERK WITH AN EASY CONSCIENCE, who is in love with a Banker's daughter, and who is not over particular as to how he gets his wedding outfit. A YOUNG GIRL, who has seen better days, and who bravely meets poverty and suffering in all its phases. A FEMALE VAMPYRE, who makes good use of what she knows, and who does business decidedly on cash principles. A LADY WHO LIVES IN A HAUNTED NEIGHBORHOOD, and turns an honest penny, &c., &c., &c. The Fortunes and Adventures of the Newsboy and the little girl who befriended him, will excite the deepest interest in the mind of the reader. They are both noble characters, whose misfortunes may well excite our sympathy, and in whose triumphs and successes every noble and generous heart will rejoice. The portraits of the guilty clerk, the vampyre, and their confederates in crime are so vividly portrayed as to leave a lasting impression on the mind. The history of the rich merchant and his fashionable wife cannot fail to arrest attention wherever it is read; and we hazard nothing in saying that this portion of the revelation will be pretty sure to cause a flutter in the fashionable circle in which the principal actors have long been recognized leaders. This powerful original Story was written expressly for the SUNDAY DISPATCH, and we submit it to the public as an evidence of what is in store for those who look to the DISPATCH for their Sunday reading. Other original novelties will rapidly follow this great story of Captain Wheeler's. In order to make room for all the original and interesting matters on hand, we shall issue a triple sheet of TWELVE PAGES this week, making

It is well known to all Medical Men that IRON is the VITAL PRINCIPLE or LIFE ELEMENT of the Blood. But it is only since the discovery of that valuable combination known as PERUVIAN SYRUP, that the great power of this VITALIZING AGENT over disease has been brought to light.

THE PERUVIAN SYRUP
THE PERUVIAN SYRUP
THE PERUVIAN SYRUP

is a PROTECTED Solution of the PROTOXIDE of IRON, a NEW DISCOVERY IN MEDICINE that STRIKES AT THE ROOT OF DISEASE, by supplying the Blood with its VITAL PRINCIPLE, or LIFE ELEMENT, IRON.
This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing DYSPEPSIA, LIVER COMPLAINT, DROPSY, CHRONIC DIARRHŒA, BOILS, NERVOUS AFFECTIONS, CHILLS and FEVERS, HUMORS, LOSS OF CONSTITUTIONAL VIGOR, DISEASES of the KIDNEYS and BLADDER, FEMALE COMPLAINTS, and all diseases originating in A BAD STATE OF THE BLOOD, or accompanied by DEBILITY or a LOW STATE OF THE SYSTEM.

To take medicine to cure diseases occasioned by a deficiency of IRON IN THE BLOOD, without restoring it to the system, is like trying to repair a building when the foundation is gone.

Pamphlets, containing certificates of cures and recommendations from some of the most eminent Physicians, Clergymen, and others, will be sent FREE to any address.

We select a few of the names to show the character of the testimonials:

Rev. T. Starr King,	S. H. Kendall, M. D.,
Rev. Arthur B. Fuller,	J. R. Chilton, M. D.,
Rev. Jos. H. Cluch,	Francis Dana, M. D.
Rev. Sylvanus Cobb,	A. A. Hayes, M. D.,
Rev. Abel Stevens,	Hon. Peter Harvey,
Rev. John Pierpont,	Samuel May, Esq.

☞ There can be but one stronger proof than the testimony of such men as these, and that is a PERSONAL TRIAL. It has cured thousands where other remedies have failed to give relief, and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

DR. LIGHTHILL, No. 34 St. Mark's-place, (Eighth-street,) can be consulted daily (Sundays excepted) from 10 A. M. until 3 P. M. Patients will not be received except during the regular office hours, unless in cases of emergency or by special arrangement. Parties residing at a distance are hereby informed that a personal examination is requisite in every case before a correct opinion can be given or appropriate treatment prescribed. Letters of Consultation must contain Five Dollars, otherwise they will remain unnoticed,

Dr. Lighthill's recent work, "A Popular Treatise on Deafness—Its Causes and Prevention," may be obtained of Carleton, Publisher, No. 413 Broadway, or of any respectable bookseller. Price $1.

NEW TESTIMONIALS

NEW-YORK, April 18, 1863.

A little daughter of mine has been affected with a troublesome discharge from both ears, the result of scarlet fever. Dr. Lighthill, under whose care I placed her, has removed the discharge completely, and improved her hearing. W. H. RAYNOR, No. 6 Pine-st.

From Rev. John Nott, D. D., Professor in Union College, Schenectady.

SCHENECTADY, Jan. 17, 1863,

Dr. Lighthill—

SIR: Having been cured by you of a discharge in an ear, which has been very offensive of late, and as far back as I can remember, always more or less so; and having been entirely restored to hearing since under your care, I feel that I cannot withhold this acknowledgment from any use it may be to others, especially as I have applied in vain to my family physician and other physicians of reputation. Yours, truly, JOHN NOTT.

CATARRH CURED.

From Rev. P. R Russell, Lynn, Mass.

I have been much troubled with catarrh of the worst type for some twenty years. It gradually grew worse, producing cough and hoarseness, destroying the sense of smell, and breaking down my general health to such a degree as to compel me to resign my pastorate, and suspend public speaking.

I made diligent use of the usual remedies, such as snuffs of different kinds, nitrate of silver, tar water, olive tar and inhalations, but without any very salutary effects. Last Summer I heard of Dr. Lighthill's successful mode of treating catarrh, visited him, and put myself under his treatment. I began immediately to improve, and this improvement has gone on to the present time. My catarrh has gradually melted away, my cough has disappeared, my voice has become natural, and I am once more able to preach the blessed Gospel. Let me advise all troubled with catarrhal difficulties to apply to Dr. Lighthill.

P. R. RUSSELL.

LYNN, Mass., Feb. 1, 1862.

NEW-YORK, June 20, 1862.

Dr. Lighthill:

DEAR SIR: I am pleased to be able to testify to the efficacy of your treatment in the case of my wife, whose hearing in one ear you succeeded in restoring, after treatment of various kinds had been applied in vain. I may furthermore state that her hearing remains good up to the present time, though it is several years since she has been under your care. E. CLAYBURGH, No. 141 Duane-st.

No. 740 WATER-ST., NEW-YORK, June 5, 1-62.

Dr. Lighthill has succeeded in completely restoring my hearing, which was seriously impaired, although previous to applying to him I was treated by several physicians without the least benefit. Any further information I should be pleased to render on application to me at my residence, No. 173 Second-st., Brooklyn, E. D., or at my place of business, No. 740 Water-st.

WM. H. WATERBURY.

NEW-YORK, July 2d, 1862.

I hereby certify that I have suffered during many years from trouble in hearing—one ear at last became entirely deaf, and the other so bad as to render conversation very difficult. I applied to Dr. Lighthill, of No. 34 St. Mark's-place, who, in a short time, and without pain, restored to me the use of my ears, so that I can now hear perfectly well. J. BISCO, No. 158 East 23d-st.

METROPOLITAN HOTEL, NEW-YORK, April 1, 1862.

DEAR SIR: I take much pleasure in testifying to the professional skill exhibited by you in your treatment of a case of severe inflammation of the throat and ear with which I have lately been afflicted. Upon coming under your charge I was immediately relieved and speedily cured of a most aggravated complaint, which several physicians had previously sought in vain to mitigate.

As I am somewhat of a stranger in the City, I would state that you are at liberty to substantiate my statements, if necessary, by reference to my relatives, Mr. A. V. Stout, President of the Shoe and Leather Bank of New-York, and to Mr. Everett Clapp, of the Western Transportation Company, No. 1 Coenties-slip.

With much esteem, I am, sir,
Your obedient servant,
FRED. M. HANKS.
To Dr. LIGHTHILL, No. 34 St. Marks-place, New-York.

No. 12 COPTLANDT-ST., NEW-YORK, Jan. 2, 1863.

DR. E. B. LIGHTHILL.—Dear Sir: It is with the kindest feelings toward you, and hoping to do service to some one who is afflicted, that I forward the inclosed document to you.

To whom it may concern: I am personally acquainted with the success which attended Dr. Lighthill's treatment in a case of discharge from the ear and chronic inflammation of the throat, and would be pleased to give further information on application.

V. D. W. WEEKES.

No. 73 GRAND-ST., NEWBURGH, N. Y., Dec. 23, 1862.

I placed my wife under the care of Dr. Lighthill for deafness in one ear of nearly three years' standing, accompanied by constant noises. I am happy to state that her hearing is now entirely restored, and the noises removed. Those residing in New-York who are desirous of further information may apply to my brother-in-law, Capt. William Edwards, at No. 95 East 34th-st., who is acquainted with the circumstances of the case.

FRANCIS GOULDY.

I have been suffering for some time with noise in my head, and deafness. Having applied to Dr. Lighthill, I have great pleasure in saying that he has completely relieved me, so that now I can hear as well as ever, and am not troubled with the noise in my head.

I may also mention that a young man named Henry Laws, staying with me, was also afflicted in a similar manner, and Dr. Lighthill was equally successful in his case. JOHN MURDOCK, No. 197 Fulton-st.

BROOKLYN, Jan. 2, 1863.

No. 42 FIFTH-ST., NEW-YORK, June 25, 1862.

DR. LIGHTHILL.—Dear Sir: I take pleasure in testifying to the remarkable skill and judgment you displayed in the case of my daughter, who had been partially deaf, accompanied by discharge from the ears, since early infancy, and is now, thanks to your treatment, able to hear as well as any one, while her ears are free from the discharge. Although it is nearly two years since she has been under your care, her hearing remains as good, and her ears as sound, as the day she left you.

O. S. HOLLY.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

THE NEW NOVEL,
ST. OLAVE'S,
AND
MISS MULOCK'S FAIRY BOOK.
HARPER & BROTHERS, NEW-YORK,
Publish this day:

I.
ST. OLAVE'S.
A novel. 8vo., Paper, 50 cents.

A good novel. It is written with unflagging ability, and it is as even as it is clever. The author has determined to do nothing short of the best, and has succeeded.—London Post.

This charming novel is the work of one who possesses a great talent for writing, as well as some experience and knowledge of the world. "St. Olave's" is the work of an artist. The whole book is worth reading, and the finale is brought about in a happy and unexpected manner.—London Atheneum.

II.
THE FAIRY BOOK.
The Best Popular Fairy Stories selected and rendered anew.
By the Author of
"JOHN HALIFAX, GENTLEMAN."
Illustrations. 16mo, Cloth, $1.

A delightful selection, in a delightful external form; full of the physical splendor and vast opulence of proper fairy tales, where the hens not only freely lay golden eggs, but eggs, not golden, hatch gold and silver dresses; abounding, too, in the charming little rhyming spells which wring responses from magic mirrors, and weave a charm round the child's understanding, in the scrupulous matter-of-fact details which realize to children's minds the orbit of wonder in which the tale moves, and finally in the quaint transformations which touch springs of subtle association in every child's memory.—Spectator (London.)

For our last collection of Fairy Tales we are indebted to one to whom we already owe much, as a bringer of pure and happy thoughts. Abjuring all idea of giving information, and leaving her readers to find their own moral, she has given us the loves of our childhood, some of them in their own old dress and speech, and others, if we are not mistaken, embellished with many a light and telling touch. A book of gold and green, to take away by one's self among the long grass in the quiet orchard, with the bees scattering the white and red apple blossoms on our heads! A book to dream over—from the lovely lady who lies with her eyes trembling to open at the nearing kiss which is to awaken her to life and love, to the story of Clever Susan, which they tell to this day among the wild gray rocks and silver lakes of Asynt! A book of dainty little pictures, to be pored over by bright little eyes, and just the size to be held between the fat little dimpled fingers, without fatigue, for a long and happy hour!—The Reader, London.

The name of "John Halifax" is enough to assure us that the fairy tales of our youth will be found to be "selected and rendered anew," with the taste and judgment which such a task requires. We find in "The Fairy Book" all the old favorites, and most of those pretty stories of Madame D'Aulnoy which have proved such an inexhaustible fund to our dramatic writers in the present age of burlesque and extravaganza. Besides these, there are a few tales of German or Scandinavian origin. The author tells us that where originals could not be obtained, the various versions have been "carefully collated;" and the old English stories of "Jack the Giant Killer," "Tom Thumb," &c., have been left unaltered in their "charming Saxon simplicity of style, and intense realism of narration."—Parthenon (London.)

This delightful collection of fairy stories. * * Miss Mulock says, wisely and well, that "the tender young heart is often reached as soon by the imagination as the intellect." She has here devoted herself with great care and skill to the recalling a series of all our best old fairy tales, with the addition of several foreign ones, but none of modern date. The quaint language and straightforward narratives of the English tales have been untouched, and this will greatly commend the book to the young folk, who hate to hear alterations in the words of a story that has once fascinated them.—The Mirror, (London.)

SOCIAL LIFE IN FRANCE AND AMERICA
JUST PUBLISHED BY C. SCRIBNER,
No. 124 Grand-st., New-York.
LABOULAYE'S GREAT WORK,
PARIS IN AMERICA.
Translated by Miss MARY L. BOOTH.
1 vol. 12 mo, 374 pages. Price $1 25.

"It is a witty and sarcastic parallel of the institutions, customs, ideas, passions, &c., of America and of France. Many pungent hits and home thrusts are made at the Frenchman's grave errors, and the American's light foibles."—Worcester Palladium.

"This is really a charming volume, full of fine irony and delicate sarcasm, and withal a noble and liberty-loving sentiment. In Paris it has made an immense sensation—the quick-sighted French people relishing intensely its keen cuts at some of the high dignitaries in France."—New-York Commercial.

"The author possesses an extraordinary mastery of humor, satire and sarcasm, with these keen blades cutting in all directions. It has produced a great sensation in France, and is destined to be read with delight in this country."—Hartford Courant.

BY THE AUTHOR OF "RUTLEDGE."
A POWERFUL NEW NOVEL.
FRANK WARRINGTON.
A powerful new novel by the author of "Rutledge," and "Sutherlands."
One large 12mo., elegantly bound in extra cloth.
Price, $1 50.

ALSO, ON THE SAME DAY,
New, elegant and uniform editions, at same price, of
II.—RUTLEDGE.
III.—THE SUTHERLANDS.

For many years there has appeared no work of fiction possessing such remarkable power and originality as "Rutledge." It flashed with brilliancy upon the reading community, whose curiosity became intense regarding its authorship—a mystery which to-day remains unsolved. "Rutledge" was followed by "The Sutherlands," developing fresh literary genius, and the present work—"Frank Warrington"—will contribute additional testimony to the talent and fame of "the author of Rutledge."

These books are sold by all booksellers, and will be sent by mail, postage free, on receipt of price, by

PUBLIC NOTICES.

PURSUANT TO AN ORDER of the COURT OF CHANCERY, of the County palatine of Lancaster, made on the fourth day of March, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-three, in the matter of the estate of WILLIAM DOUGLAS, late of Preston, in the County palatine of Lancaster, within the Archdeaconry of Richmond and Province of York, in England, grocer, an intestate, and in the matter of the act of the 10th and 11th Vic., cap. 96, intituled "An act for the better securing trust funds, and for relief of trustees," and in the matter of the Court of Chancery of Lancaster act, 1850, and in the matter of the Court of Chancery of Lancaster act, 1854, the persons claiming to be next of kin, according to the Statutes of Distribution, of William Douglas, late of Preston, in the said County palatine of Lancaster, grocer, an intestate, who died in or about the month of June, one thousand eight hundred and nine, are by their solicitors, on or before the first day of May, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-four, to come in and prove their claims at the office of the Registrar for the Preston District of the said Court of Chancery of the County palatine of Lancaster, situate at No. 10 Camden-place, in Preston, in the said County palatine, or, in default thereof, they will be peremptorily excluded from the benefit of the said order. The 12th day of May, 1864, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, is fixed for hearing and adjudicating upon the claims at the office of the said Registrar. The said William Douglas was the son of Thomas Douglas, of Preston, and Jennet, his wife, formerly Jennet Ferguson, and is believed to have had two brothers, George Douglas and Thomas Douglas. George Douglas, when last heard of, in the year 1836, was alive in New-York, in the United States, and Thomas Douglas, the brother, when last heard of, in the year 1847, was alive at or near Sydney, New South Wales. Thomas Douglas, the father, is believed to have been a native of Hawick, in Roxburghshire. Jennet, the mother, is believed to have been a daughter of William Ferguson and Isabel, his wife, of Hawick, aforesaid, and to have had two sisters—Mary Ferguson, afterward Mary Goring, and Martha Ferguson, afterward Martha Eccles.

PRIVATE DISEASES CURED IN THE shortest possible time by Dr. WARD & Co., No. 50 Lispenard-st., near Broadway, without the use of Mercury, loss of time or change of diet. Dr. WARD, from the hospitals of London, Paris and Edinburgh, is the discoverer of the only certain and reliable remedies for diseases of a private character, in 24 hours. He has cured more cases of secret diseases and Wrong Treatment than all others combined. I can and will cure you in less time and expense than any one can or will, and those who have been robbed of their money and health, call: it will take but little money and time to restore you. If you have been unfortunate, call at once. By his special experience in this much neglected branch of medical science, he is enabled to guarantee a cure in the most complicated cases. Recent cases of Gonorrhœa or Syphilis cured in a few days, without change of diet or hindrance from business. Secondary Syphilis—the last vestige eradicated without the use of Mercury. Involuntary emissions stopped in a short time. Sufferers from Impotency, or loss of sexual power, restored to full vigor in a few weeks. Permanently and speedily cured by a new treatment. Persons at a distance failing to receive prompt treatment elsewhere, may get a permanent cure effected by writing a full statement of their case, addressed to Dr. WARD, No. 50 Lispenard-st., the only place. Call, send or write.

SURE CULE—BY DR. POWERS, SUCCESSfully consulted with Dr. WARD, No. 50 Lispenard-st. Conducted on the principles of the Hospitals Venereens, Paris, where those afflicted with any form of private disease can receive prompt treatment, without risk or exposure, viz.: Syphilis, gonorrhœa, gleet, strictures, ulcers, tumors, cancers, secondary and constitutional syphilis, diseases of the kidneys, &c. Also thirty years of extensive practice, exclusively devoted to the treatment of those complaints arising from the effects of self-abuse, where others of less experience have failed. Dr. Powers' essence of Life restores the vigor of youth in four weeks. This marvelous agent restores manhood to the most shattered constitution—bars all disqualifications, impediments to marriage, &c., by speedily curing. The men to consult, Drs. Ward and Powers, he champions and kings of venereal disease, possessing the most certain, speedy and only effectual remedies in the world, guarantee a perfect cure, or no fee, in from one to three days. Established in 1845. N. B.—Those who have used their preventives are never will heard from for a circular. To Ladies.—Dr. Lowers' Periodical Drops are a safe and certain remedy for monthly irregularities. Use above remedies sent by mail. The afflicted should read their circular. Postage free, on receipt of a stamp. Cures warranted.

DRS. TRALL & JACKSON'S "PATHOLOGY OF THE REPRODUCTIVE ORGANS."—"This is really a scientific work of great practical value. All other works on the subjects discussed in this volume, that have fallen under our observation, are addressed mainly to a prurient taste, and are positively pernicious."—Chicago Tribune. "This volume is full of scientific information of incalculable benefit in the cure of disease."—New-Bedford Mercury. "It is unquestionably the most complete, the most sensible and the most valuable work of its kind yet published."—The New Yorker. "It offers judicious advice to suffering humanity, which will save thousands from consigning their afflictions by resorting to quack doctors and empirical treatment."—Boston Journal. "It is the only work in existence containing directions which will positively cure that distressing disease termed spermatorrhœa, and other sexual diseases which cause so much misery to the human family."—Boston Express.

All sufferers from the above complaints, either of recent or long standing, are advised to use Blair's Gout and Rheumatic Pills. Eight separate rooms and a private entrance.

DR. POWERS' PERIODICAL DROPS are designed for both married and single ladies, and are the very best thing known for the purpose, as they will bring on the monthly sickness in cases of obstruction from any cause, and after all other remedies of the kind have been tried in vain. Expressly for obstinate cases. Warranted as represented in every respect, or the price will be refunded. Beware of imitations! Purchase directly of Dr. POWERS, 50 Lispenard-st., New-York.

THE MARRIAGE GUIDE.—BY DR. F. HOLLICK, the author and lecturer, contains everything on the subject, Physiology and Medical. Illustrated by wood-cuts and colored plates, 500 pages, well bound, 200th edition; will be sent anywhere free by post for $1 by the publisher, T. W. STRONG, No. 18 Nassau-st., New-York City.

SOMETHING FOR EVERY LADY.—DR. WARD'S Great Female Benefactor or Golden Regulating Pills. Infallible in correcting, regulating and removing all obstructions from whatever cause, and they will never disappoint the anxious patient. Office No. 50 Lispenard-st., near Broadway, where Dr. WARD can be consulted, confidentially, day and evening.

SULPHUR AND VAPOR BATHS—ESTABlished in 1820.—The only genuine baths in the United States, at No 1 Carroll-place, Bleecker-st., corner of Laurens, for cure of rheumatism, mercurial affections, &c. Given daily by Dr. A. L. TIMOLAT & CO.

PRIVATE CONSULTATION.—DR. HUNTER has, for thirty years, confined his attention to diseases of a certain class, in which he has treated no less than fifty thousand cases, without an instance of failure. His great remedy, HUNTER'S RED DROP, cures certain diseases, when regular treatment and all other remedies fail; cures without diet or restriction in the habits of the patient; cures without the disgusting and sickening effects of all other remedies; cures in new cases in less than six hours; cures without the dreadful consequent effects of mercury, but possesses the peculiarly valuable property of annihilating the rank and poisonous virus that the blood is sure to absorb unless his remedy is used. That is what he claims for it, and what no other will accomplish. Its value in this respect has become so well known, that a scientific man in every department of medical knowledge begin to appreciate it, for hardly a week passes that he is not consulted by druggists, chemists and physicians, in regard to some critical patient who has exhausted the whole field of the faculty, and still the disease will appear. Its popularity is so great, that there is not a quack doctor in the City that has not attacked it, and when they find the lies are not so easily swallowed, they then pretend that they can make it. It is $1 a vial, and cannot be obtained genuine anywhere but at the old office, No. 5 Division-st. Beware of base imitations. Don't be humbugged. Inclose 18 three-cent stamps, 300 pages, 100 colored plates. The best work out.

PROPOSALS.

PROPOSALS FOR STEAM MACHINERY.

NAVY DEPARTMENT, June 3, 1863.

Sealed Proposals will be received by the Navy Department up to the 25th of June, for STEAM MACHINERY of the following description, namely:

Geared engines, two cylinders, diameter of cylinder, 100 inches; stroke of piston, 4 feet; multiple of gearing, 2; diameter of driving wheel to pitch line, 10 feet 3 inches; length over all of driving-wheel, 11 feet 3 inches. To have one Sewell's surface condenser, with seamless brass tubes and an exposed condensing surface of 7,034 square feet. To have vertical water-tube boilers, with seamless brass tubes, containing 400 square feet of grate surface and 25,000 square feet of heating surface. To have a superheating apparatus. To have one brass screw of 18 feet diameter, with 4 blades, and a length of 27 inches. To have a brass and copper rudder, rudder-post and shoe, and to be provided with one steam pump. The drawings of these engines can be examined at the Bureau of Steam Engineering.

Two back-action engines for the United States frigate Franklin, at the Kittery Navy-yard; diameter of cylinders, 68 inches; stroke of pistons, three feet nine inches. To have one Sewell's surface condenser, with seamless brass tubes, and an exposed condensing surface of 5,000 square feet. To have vertical water-tube boilers with seamless brass tubes, containing 550 square feet of grate surface and 16,000 square feet of heating surface. To have a super heating apparatus. To have one brass screw to hoist up, with brass guides and hoisting apparatus; the screw to be 19 feet in diameter, two-bladed, and 5 feet 6 inches long. To be provided with two blowing engines and four steam pumps. The drawings of these engines can be examined at the Bureau of Steam Engineering.

Back-action engines, two cylinders, diameter of cylinders 60 inches, stroke of piston 3 feet. To have one Sewell's surface condenser with seamless brass tubes and an exposed condensing surface of 5,000 square feet. To have vertical water tube boilers with seamless brass tubes, containing 550 square feet of grate surface and 15,750 square feet of heating surface. To have a superheating apparatus. To have one brass screw of 16 feet diameter, with four blades and a length of 33 inches. To have a brass and copper rudder, rudder-post and shoe; and to be provided with four blowing engines and four steam pumps. The design of these engines to be similar to that of the above, 68 inches diameter of cylinder and 3 feet 6 inches stroke of piston.

Back-action screw engines for gunboats, with two cylinders, each of 30 inches diameter, and a stroke of piston of 21 inches. Each pair to have one Sewell's surface condenser, with seamless brass tubes, and an exposed condensing surface of 1,200 square feet. To have vertical water-tube boilers, with seamless brass tubes, containing 187 square feet of grate surface and 4,700 square feet of heating surface. To have a superheating apparatus. To have one brass screw of 11 feet diameter, with four blades, and a length of 18 inches. To have a brass and copper rudder, rudder-post, and shoe, and to be provided with one steam pump. The drawings of these engines can be examined at the Bureau of Steam Engineering.

Inclined paddle-wheel engines for double-ended gunboats, with one cylinder of 58 inches diameter of cylinder, and a stroke of piston of 8 feet 9 inches. To have one Sewell's condenser with seamless brass tubes, and an exposed condensing surface of 2,500 square feet. To have vertical water-tube boilers, with seamless brass tubes containing 200 square feet of grate surface, and 5,000 square feet of heating surface. To have a superheating apparatus. To have overhung iron paddle-wheels of 26 feet 6 inches diameter, and 9 feet length of paddle. To have two blowing engines, and one steam pump. The general plan and specification of this engine can be examined at the Bureau of Steam Engineering.

The material, workmanship and finish of all the screw engines to be the same as described in the specifications for the screw machinery of the sloops of the Juniata class, copies of which are in possession of all the principal marine steam engine building establishments in the United States.

All the provisions embraced in the contracts for that machinery to apply to the contracts which may be made under this advertisement. The same number of duplicate pieces, and the same quantity of tools, instruments, outfits, etc., proportionally, to be supplied, that is called for in those specifications.

The proposals to be indorsed "Proposals for Steam Machinery," to distinguish them from other business letters.

Parties are requested to offer for any one of the engines, or for as many as they may consider themselves able to execute.

The contract will embrace the usual conditions, and payments will be made in the usual manner as the work progresses.

The Department reserves the right to reject any or all of the proposals that may be made under this advertisement if, in its opinion, the public interest requires.

The proposal will state the name or names of the Navy-yards at which the parties intend to furnish the machinery, the number of engines they propose to build; the names of the parties in full, and of their sureties; the gross sum for which they propose to furnish the machinery, erected in the vessel complete and ready for steaming, and the time from date of contract in which they will guarantee to complete the work.

The proposals of parties will also be considered who may choose to offer for machinery of equal power on plans and specifications of their own in place of those above described.

PROPOSALS FOR HAY, STRAW AND GRAIN.

ASSISTANT QUARTERMASTER'S OFFICE, FORAGE DEPARTMENT, corner of G and 22d-sts., WASHINGTON, D. C., April 16, 1863.

Written proposals are invited for furnishing HAY, STRAW, OATS and CORN for the use of this depot, to be delivered at the railroad depot, or at any of the Government wharves in this city.

The proposals to be addressed to the undersigned, and they should state the quantity of each article offered, also the price and the date of delivery.

Proposals will be received for five thousand (5,000) bushels of Corn or Oats, and fifty (50) tons of Hay or Straw, and upward, unless it should be for the interest of the Government to contract for a less amount.

All grain to be put up in good sacks, of about two (2) bushels each, which are to be furnished at the cost of the contractor.

The Hay and Straw to be securely baled.

All Grain and Hay offered to be subject to a rigid inspection by the Government Inspector.

Contracts will be awarded from time to time to the lowest responsible bidders, as the interests of the service may require. Good security will be required for the faithful fulfillment of any contract made under this advertisement.

Payment to be made at the completion of the contract.

S. L. BROWN,
Captain and A. Q. M. U. S. A.

QUARTERMASTER-GENERAL'S OFFICE, WASHINGTON CITY, March 19, 1863.

OWNERS OF STEAM VESSELS ARE INvited to send to the Quartermaster-General's Office tenders for their charter or sale.

Senders should contain descriptions of the vessels, their dimensions, enrolled or registered tonnage, actual carrying capacity, material, whether coppered, whether side wheel or propellers, whether iron or copper fastened, size and power of engines and boilers, and should state the price at which they are offered, for long or short charter, with the estimated value of the vessel in case of loss, or in case the Government should prefer to purchase instead of chartering.

Owners of steam vessels already in the service of the Quartermaster's Department are requested to make known to the Department any reduction in their present rates which they may be willing to grant, and also the price at which they will be willing to sell them.

All such tenders should be addressed to the Quartermaster General of the United States at Washington, and should be indorsed,

"Proposals for charter or sale of steamers."

When received they will be considered, and the Department will endeavor to reduce the heavy expense attending any transportation upon the ocean and tide-waters, by substituting, wherever it can do so, cheaper vessels of equal capacity for those now employed.

GEN. BURNSIDE'S DEPARTMENT.

The Order Suppressing the Chicago Times Revoked.

The New-York World Allowed to Circulate.

CHICAGO, Thursday, June 4.

The Times having issued a paper this morning, the military took possession of the office, and remained until evening, when a telegram received by the proprietors from Gen. BURNSIDE, saying that his order suppressing their circulation having been revoked by the President, they were at liberty to continue its publication.

In the United States Court, to-day, the entire session was devoted to hearing arguments of the counsel for the Times.

THE WORLD.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Thursday, June 4.

Editor of the New-York World:

Having been directed by the President of the United States to revoke that part of my order suppressing the Chicago Times, I have revoked the entire order, and your paper will be allowed its circulation in this Department.

A. E. BURNSIDE, Major-General.

GEN. BURNSIDE'S ORDERS.

RESTRICTING THE CIRCULATION OF COPPERHEAD JOURNALS.

HEADQUARTERS DEPARTMENT OF THE OHIO, CINCINNATI, O., June 1, 1863.

GENERAL ORDER No. 84.—1. The tendency of the opinions and articles habitually published in the newspaper known as the New-York World being to cast reproach upon the Government, and to weaken its efforts to suppress the rebellion by creating distrust in its war policy, its circulation in time of war is calculated to exert a pernicious and treasonable influence, and is therefore prohibited in this Department.

2. Postmasters, news agents and all others will govern themselves by this order, as any person detected in forwarding, selling or in any way circulating the paper referred to, will be promptly arrested and held for trial.

3. On account of the repeated expression of disloyal and incendiary sentiments, the publication of the newspaper known as the Chicago Times is hereby suppressed.

4. Brig.-Gen. JACOB AMMEN, commanding the District of Illinois, is charged with the execution of the third paragraph of this order.

By command of Major-Gen. BURNSIDE.

AGAINST COPPERHEAD LITERATURE IN GENERAL.

HEADQUARTERS DEPARTMENT OF THE OHIO, CINCINNATI, OHIO, June 2, 1863.

GENERAL ORDERS, No. 87.—It is announced for the information of all concerned, that the publication or circulation of books containing sentiments of a disloyal tendency, comes clearly within the reach of General Orders No. 38, and those who offend will be dealt with accordingly.

By command of Maj.-Gen. BURNSIDE.

A CONTUMACIOUS CHAPLAIN.

HEADQUARTERS DEPARTMENT OF THE OHIO, CINCINNATI, Ohio, June 1, 1863.

GENERAL ORDERS, No. 81.—Rev. S. T. HUNTING, Chaplain Twenty-seventh regiment infantry, Michigan Volunteers, having strangely forgotten his clerical character, as well as his duties as an officer, by countenancing in his regiment resistance to a lawful order of a superior officer, and having written a letter to a civilian in which he desires him to appeal to popular assemblages to support his presumptive and traitorous spirit, he is, subject to the approval of the President, dishonorably dismissed the service of the United States, as a man totally unfitted to fill a position which least, perhaps, of all should have been disgraced by the deliberate and persistent violation of an oath of office. By command of Major-Gen. BURNSIDE.

A COURT-MARTIAL.

For uttering disloyal and seditious sentiments, tending to discourage enlistments, afford aid and comfort to the enemy and weaken the power of the Government in its efforts to suppress an unlawful rebellion, JACOB BRISBINE has been sentenced by Court-martial to pay as a fine five hundred ($500) dollars, is required to give bonds to the amount of two thousand ($2,000) dollars for his future loyal conduct, and to remain in prison until the foregoing sentence is complied with.

AN IMPORTANT HABEAS CORPUS CASE.

Is a Spy Subject to the Control of the Military or Civil Authorities?

On the 19th ult., the Provost-Marshal arrested, at a boarding-house in Eighth-street, Mr. SIDNEY KIRTLAND, recently from Alabama, who passed under the assumed name of Catlin. The charge against him was that of being a rebel spy and of having communication with the enemy. Day before yesterday, KIRTLAND sued out a writ of habeas corpus, through his counsel, Ex-Judge STUART, which was made returnable before Judge MCCUNN at his Chambers in Wall-street. P. M. GLASSY, Esq., on behalf of the Provost-Marshal, made prompt return to the writ, producing the body of the prisoner. The return set forth that, in April last, KIRTLAND left the State of Alabama, now in rebellion against the Government, passed secretly through the Union lines, and, on his arrival in this city, took lodgings with a man named PUTNAM, who was well known to the Provost-Marshal as being in communication with the enemy; that he refused to take the oath of allegiance, and while here went under an assumed name, and that he was regarded and held as a spy, subject to the control of the military authorities, or if not a spy, that he was a prisoner of war. The return to the writ having been submitted to the Judge, the case was adjourned to 3 P. M. yesterday. At the hour appointed the prisoner was again produced, and his counsel put in a traverse to the above return to the following effect: That KIRTLAND is a Northern man, born and bred in Saybrook, Ct., and never spent a Winter in the South until the rebellion broke out; that his reasons for leaving Alabama were to avoid conscription into the rebel army and to pay a visit to his parents before they died, who are now living in Gaybrook, and are both between 80 and 90 years of age; that he has always been loyal to the United States Government, and believing that the rebellion would be substantially ended during the present year he was staying here waiting for that event; that the reason why he refused to take the oath of allegiance was because, if he were to do so, all his property, which is in the South, would be destroyed, and his family reduced to poverty, and his Northern creditors defrauded of their just dues; also the additional and more potent reason that his wife and children, who are at present with her parents in Alabama, would be imprisoned and perhaps put to death, if it were known that he had taken the oath of allegiance to the United States Government. He denies that he is a spy or has communication with the enemy, and says that his acquaintance with the man PUTNAM was purely accidental, and he knows nothing of his business or purposes. His reasons for going under an assumed name are not given.

The above traverse having been sworn to by the prisoner, the case was adjourned to 12 M. to-day, when the legal questions involved will be argued by the counsel for the Government and for the prisoner respectively. These questions are substantially the same as those embraced in the Hambleton case, and are of the utmost importance, as they involve the point whether, in time of war, a person coming from the enemy's lines, and arrested as a spy, can be taken out of the custody of the military authorities and set at liberty by the civil tribunals. It is essential for various reasons that the point should be specifically settled one way or the other, and Judge MCCUNN has promised to give his decision to-day. It has been intimated that if the Government is to be continually thwarted in the exercise of what it deems to be its legitimate war powers, it will be under the absolute necessity of suspending the writ of habeas corpus entirely, so far as this City is concerned.

The Returning Regiments.

ARRIVAL OF THE TWENTY-NINTH NEW-YORK VOLUNTEERS.

The above regiment arrived at this City from the seat of war yesterday. The regiment is composed of Germans, numbers 300 men, and is commanded by Lieut.-Col. SCHLUEMBACH. It paraded up Broadway to Grand-street, thence to the Bowery to LINDEMULLER'S saloon, where it was invited to partake of refreshments.

RECEPTION OF THE THIRTY-SEVENTH AND THIRTY-EIGHTH REGIMENTS.

HEADQUARTERS EIGHTH REGIMENT N. G. S. N. Y., NEW-YORK, June —, 1863.

GENERAL ORDER, No. 8.—Pursuant to brigade order this regiment will parade on Friday, the 5th inst., to participate in the reception of the Thirty-seventh and Thirty-eighth regiments New-York Volunteers.

Line will be formed on Broome-street; right on Broadway at 2 o'clock P. M. Field and Staff mounted, will report to the Commandant on the parade-ground. The band and non-commissioned Staff will report to the Adjutant a quarter of an hour before time of formation, on the parade-ground.e

THE METROPOLITAN POLICE.

Charges and Specifications of Official Misconduct Against the Police Commissioners.

To His Excellency Horatio Seymour, Governor of the State of New-York:

SIR: I respectfully present the following charges and specifications of official misconduct against JAMES BOWEN, THOMAS C. ACTON and JOHN G. BERGEN, the Commissioners of the Metropolitan Police, and each of them, except that the said JAMES BOWEN is not included in so much of the said charges and specifications as relates to misconduct since the 1st day of January last past; the said charges and specifications being supplementary and in addition to the charges against the said Commissioners made by the subscriber on the 1st day of January last past:

FIRST CHARGE.

Arresting persons arbitrarily, without legal process or other valid authority, in violation of section 11, title 6, chapter 1, part 4, of the Revised Statutes, by which it is made a misdemeanor, punishable by fine and imprisonment, "if any Sheriff or other officer, or any person pretending to be an officer, shall, under the pretence or color of any process or other legal authority, arrest any person, or detain him against his will," "without due and legal process, or other valid authority," and omitting to take persons so arrested before a magistrate, in violation of section 30, of chapter 259, of the Laws of 1860, which requires that "every member of the Police force who shall arrest a person without a warrant shall immediately and without delay, upon such arrest, convey in person such offender before the nearest magistrate, that he may be dealt with according to law."

First Specification.—That the said Commissioners caused or permitted the arrest of ALGERNON S. SULLIVAN, at No. 84 West Fourteenth-street, in the City of New-York, on or about the 7th of August, 1861, by two members of the Metropolitan Police force, upon the order of Superintendent KENNEDY, of the said force, without legal process or other valid authority, and held the said SULLIVAN in custody without taking him before a magistrate, all of which was in violation of said statutes.

[There are twelve other specifications, varying but lightly in the alleged wrongful arrest of individuals.]

SECOND CHARGE.

Using the public buildings in their charge and control as such Commissioners and permitting the same to be used for the forcible and unlawful confinement of persons as prisoners who were not held on any legal process or valid charge, and denying to such persons any and all information as to the cause of their imprisonment.

First Specification.—That the said Commissioners caused or permitted ALGERNON S. SULLIVAN to be forcibly and unlawfully imprisoned at the police headquarters, corner of Broome and Elm streets, in the City of New-York, during one night in the month of August, 1861, the said SULLIVAN not being held in custody on any legal process or valid charge, and being denied any and all information as to the cause of his imprisonment.

[There are eight other specifications of wrongful imprisonment of individuals.]

THIRD CHARGE.

Permitting ladies to be treated by members of the Metropolitan Police force in a manner inconsistent with the respect due to their sex and with their natural modesty, and injurious to the feelings and character of those who were wantonly and cruelly subjected to such treatment.

First Specification.—That the said Commissioners permitted Mrs. ISABEL M. BRINSMADE, a lady about 20 years of age, to be unlawfully held in custody by members of the Metropolitan Police force, from about the 20th of September, 1862, to the 3d of November, 1862, at the Police Station-house in West Forty-seventh-street, in the City of New-York, a building in the charge of the said Commissioners, and under their control, which building was occupied by a large number of men and not by any other woman, at which place she was attended and waited upon only by men, and was also subjected to the improper importunities of one or more men in the employ of the War Department at Washington, who visited her and sought to induce a compliance with their desires by means of the power which was exercised over her liberty, during which time her friends were not allowed to see her, and she was prevented from any communication with them, all of which was in violation of law and decency.

Second Specification.—That the said Commissioners permitted CATHARINE MCCABE, a lady about 22 years of age, to be unlawfully held in custody by members of the Metropolitan Police force, from 3 o'clock in the afternoon until 9 o'clock in the evening of the 26th of August, 1862, at the Police Headquarters, corner of Broome and Elm streets, in the City of New-York, a building in the charge of the said Commissioners, and under their control, in a room with a man also held as a prisoner, to whom she was a stranger, and without the company of any person of her own sex, all of which was in violation of law and decency.

FOURTH CHARGE.

Confining persons held as prisoners by the said Commissioners, or under their control, in a cruel and inhuman manner.

First Specification.—That the said Commissioners caused or permitted AUGUSTUS H. BENNING, to be confined as a prisoner, in close custody, from the 14th of August, 1862, to the 18th of the same month, in cell No. 4 in the basement of the Police Headquarters, corner of Broome and Elm streets, in the City of New-York, said cell being a damp, dark, noxious and unhealthy place, six feet long by four feet wide, overrun with vermin, filled with offensive and deleterious odors, and furnished for the purposes of sleep with only a wooden shelf and a wooden pillow—such confinement being of a nature calculated to endanger the life of the said BENNING.

[There are two other specifications under this charge.]

FIFTH CHARGE.

Unlawfully transferring and conveying persons, held in custody by them or their subordinates without authority, who were within the jurisdiction of the State of New-York, and entitled to its protection, to places within the limits of the State, but under another jurisdiction and control, in violation of the laws of the State of New-York and in contravention of its honor and dignity.

Specification.—That the said Commissioners, in or about the month of August, 1862, caused or permitted Lewis Ballard, David P. Webster, William A. Greenleaf, William M. Van Wagenen, William R. McDonald, Alfred Kershaw, Alfred Phillips, Frederick Duane A. W. Platt and Richard Kimeland, who were unlawfully held in custody by the said Commissioners or their subordinates, to be forcibly and unlawfully taken and conveyed from the City of New-York to the said Fort Hamilton, and to be there delivered to a military officer of the United States, by whom the said persons so held in custody were taken and received to the said Fort Lafayette, at which last-mentioned place each of the said persons was subsequently and unlawfully confined as a prisoner.

[There are four other specifications under this charge.]

SIXTH CHARGE.

Using the power of the Metropolitan Police, and permitting the same to be used, to coerce persons within the jurisdiction of the State of New-York and under its protection, and compel them as a condition of their release from an illegal imprisonment to take an oath which they could not lawfully be required to take, and which oath was in contravention of the rights, interests, dignity and honor of the State of New-York.

[There are three specifications under this charge.]

SEVENTH CHARGE.

Using the power of the Metropolitan Police, and permitting the same to be used, to coerce persons within the jurisdiction of the State of New-York and under its protection, and to compel them, as a condition of release from an illegal imprisonment, to execute and deliver a bond which they could not lawfully be required to execute and deliver, which proceeding was in violation of the rights of the said persons, and in contravention of the honor and dignity of the State of New-York.

[There are three specifications under this charge.]

EIGHTH CHARGE.

Forcibly and unlawfully searching the persons, property and premises of individuals against whom no criminal charge had been made or was pending, and taking therefrom papers and other property and retaining the same.

First Specification.—That the said Commissioners, in the month of August, 1861, caused or permitted two members of the Metropolitan Police force, upon the order of Superintendent KENNEDY, by force and violence, and without a warrant or other legal process, to search the person of ALGERNON S. SULLIVAN, against whom no criminal charge had been made or was pending, and in like manner to search the office and residence of the said SULLIVAN, and to break the locks of his desks and other furniture, all of which was in violation of law.

[There are other specifications under this charge.]

NINTH CHARGE.

Using and expending moneys raised by taxation and paid to the treasurer of the Board of Metropolitan Police, under and by virtue of chapter 259 of the laws of 1860 for purposes not authorized by law, and in violation of the express provision of the said statute.

First Specification.—That the said Commissioners have expended about one hundred thousand dollars of the said moneys since the 7th day of November, 1861, in the purchase of a site of ground in Mulberry-street, in the City of New-York, and in the erection, fitting up and furnishing of a building thereon, not by contract, but by payments to favorites at extravagant prices, without any authority of law, and notwithstanding a positive prohibition contained in said chapter 259 of the laws of 1860.

Second Specification.—That the said Commissioners have from time to time expended divers sums, forming part of the said moneys, for the purchase and keeping of horses for the use of the said Commissioners and their clerks, without authority of law, and notwithstanding a positive prohibition contained in said chapter 259 of the laws of 1860.

Third Specification.—That the said Commissioners have at various times expended divers sums, forming part of the said moneys, in payment of the expenses of members of the Metropolitan Police force, incurred while the said members were traveling within and without the limits of the State of New-York, upon business not authorized by the laws of the said State, and not forming part of their duties as members of the said force.

Fourth Specification.—That the said Commissioners have annually received a large sum of money, to wit: about ten thousand dollars, as part of the said moneys raised by taxation, and expended such moneys for the purchase of buttons for uniforms of the officers and men of the force, but that the said officers and men have nevertheless been required to pay the said Commissioners, or some of their subordinates, for the buttons furnished to and received by them respectively.

TENTH CHARGE.

Expending and disbursing moneys paid to and deposited with the said Commissioners in a fiduciary capacity in violation of the trust under which such moneys were received by them.

Specification.—That the said Commissioners, on or about the 12th of July, 1860, received the sum of $13,750, in pursuance of the instructions of certain Japanese gentlemen, who had then recently been guests of the City of New-York, upon the trust that the said Commissioners would distribute the said sum of money among the police force of said City, or a portion of the said force, and that the said Commissioners kept the said money for a long time in their own possession, and have expended the whole or a large part thereof for purposes other than that for which it was deposited with them, and in violation of the said trust.

ELEVENTH CHARGE.

Authorizing and permitting the members of the Metropolitan Police force, and other persons holding office under the said Commissioners, to hold other positions and perform other duties inconsistent with the proper and thorough performance of their duties as members of the said force and officers in the employ of the said Commissioners; and also paying to some of them their salaries for periods of time during which they were in other employ and receiving other pay.

Using, and threatening to use, their power to remove members of the Metropolitan Police force, and to appoint persons as members of the said force, for the purpose of compelling and attempting to compel members of the said force, and persons seeking to become members, to sign papers and perform other acts which the said members and other persons could not legally and properly be required to sign or perform.

First Specification.—That the said Commissioners, for the purpose of acquiring an unlawful control over the members of the force, required THEODORE BRODHEAD and other persons appointed as patrolmen to sign, before they were sworn into office, resignations of the offices to which they had been appointed, which resignations were retained by the said Commissioners for the purpose of allowing them to dismiss said patrolmen arbitrarily and without trial.

TWELFTH CHARGE.

[There are four other specifications under this charge.]

THIRTEENTH CHARGE.

Using and attempting to use the power of the Metropolitan Police force to influence public elections and to control members of the Metropolitan Police force and other citizens in their political action.

First Specification.—That the said Commissioners caused or permitted JOHN A. KENNEDY to issue and publish on the 1st day of November, 1862, a certain paper, known as "General Order, No. 324," signed by the said KENNEDY, as such Superintendent, by which said paper the Captains of the Police for the several Precincts in the Metropolitan Police Districts were directed to station a man at the polls in each Election District during the general election held on the 4th day of November last, "from the opening to the closing thereof," who should "carefully note each and every person" offering to vote at such poll whose name appeared "on the exemption books as excused from draft by any Commissioner on the ground of being an alien or non-resident," the pretended object of said paper being to aid the War Department in making a draft of persons for military service, but its real object being to deter citizens from voting by connecting in their minds the exercise of that right with the draft which was then expected to be made for the military service of the United States.

Second Specification.—That the said Commissioners caused and permitted the said Kennedy to include in the said paper, known as General Order No. 324, further directions, to the effect that every person offering to vote whose name appeared on the exemption book as having been excused from draft, on the ground of being an alien or non-resident, "should be secured and conveyed to the station house, there to be detained subject to the orders of the Secretary of War," notwithstanding that the said Commissioners and the said Superintendent well knew that it was the duty of the officers to arrest any person voting illegally and report the case to the District Attorney of the County for prosecution, in accordance with the laws of the State of New York, and that there was no law providing for the punishment of an illegal voter by or through the Secretary of War, and the object of withholding, as directed by the said paper, any person voting illegally from the punishment provided by the laws of the said State and wrongfully holding him, "subject to the orders of the War Department," being to hold out to every such person voting illegally the inducement of immunity from punishment in case he voted in a manner likely to be acceptable to the Secretary of War.

Third Specification.—That THOMAS C. ACTON, one of the said Commissioners, on one occasion sent a message to WILLIAM ROSS, one of the Metropolitan Police force, by the police telegraph, to get a crowd of persons and take them to a primary election, to be held in the Fifteenth Ward of the City of New-York, to aid in the election of a ticket supported by the said ACTON.

FOURTEENTH CHARGE.

Appointing persons as Policemen from improper considerations, and allowing money to be exacted from applicants as a condition of appointment.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

HENRY K. BLAUVELT.

NEW-YORK, June 2, 1863.

City and County of New-York, ss.—HENRY K. BLAUVELT, being duly sworn, deposes and says that the foregoing charges and specifications are true, to the best of his knowledge, and as he verily believes.

HENRY K. BLAUVELT.

Sworn before me this 2d day of June, 1863. THOMAS D. JAMES, Notary Public, City and County of New-York.

STATE OF NEW-YORK, EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT, ALBANY, June 3, 1863.

The annexed papers are copies of charges which have been made against you, and which are on file in this office. You are required to make your answers to the same, which are to be sent to me on or before the 13th instant. You are also required to answer within the same time to the charges which were made by H. K. BLAUVELT, on the 1st of January last, copies of which were served upon you on the 2d day of January last. When your answers are received, I will make the proper order for an inquiry into the truth of the charges made.

HORATIO SEYMOUR.

To Messrs. JAMES BOWEN, THOMAS C. ACTON and JOHN G. BERGEN.

THE TURF.

The Great Trotting Match Between George M. Patchen and Gen. Butler.

The second match for $5,000 between these horses—two miles and repeat in harness—took place Wednesday on the Fashion Race-course, in presence of about two thousand spectators—good order reigning—against about ten thousand who witnessed the last match. Of course this meagre attendance is to be attributed to the scenes of rowdyism and robbery which occurred both inside and outside the course, and on the railroad cars, on the former occasion; and, after the fashion of locking the stable door after the horse is stolen, a hundred Metropolitan Police, under the charge of Capt. WALLING, Twentieth Precinct, were detailed for the protection of the people who were not there yesterday. Forty of them went to the course in the 10 o'clock train, and the rest with the crowd in the 2 o'clock train, and were thus enabled to protect the passengers from the operations of the few sly thieves and three-card-monte men who had managed to smuggle themselves on board, notwithstanding the vigilance of the Detectives who pointed out great numbers to the Metropolitans, who promptly sent them back over the ferries as fast as they were spotted. Not to be beat, however, a large number of these rogues got to the race-course in hacks by the lower ferries, and after attending the race, had made quite a harvest at monte playing before the police arrived at the West Flushing Station to take the cars to New-York; and with the impunity with which the games continued under the eyes of the Metropolitans, it is to be presumed that they had no power in the premises, and that the Sheriff is alone responsible for its continuance outside the cars. The Detectives who did such valuable service were Messrs. Stowey, Tiemann, Smith, Wilson, Dusenbury and Vaughan.

THE RACE.

The decided favorite was Geo. M. Patchen, who was beautifully handled by D. TALLMAN, 100 to 20 being freely offered; while Gen. Butler was still relied upon by his friends, who had great faith in the ability of DAN MACE to pull him through first by hook or by crook, and no driver can use his head or tongue to better advantage than the accomplished DAN. Both horses looked in admirable condition upon being brought up to the stand, and got off very evenly after two or three false starts for the

First Heat—Patchen, led by a length at the first turn, breaking up and being caught quickly again, and increasing his lead past the quarter mile post in 36 seconds to three lengths in advance, and four lengths ahead at the half mile post in 1 minute 14 seconds; three lengths ahead at the first mile in 2 minutes 28 seconds, and came in an easy winner by five lengths in 4 minutes 58 seconds. Both Patchen and Butler broke on entering the first turn on the second mile, but were got down again in an instant, Butler breaking up several times, while Patchen trotted squarely throughout.

Second Heat—After several balking attempts, an even start was effected, and Patchen put on such a burst of speed that he entered the first turn two lengths ahead, the pace carrying Butler off his feet; and again on the backstretch, Patchen passed the quarter-pole four lengths ahead, in 38 seconds, and the half mile by ten lengths in 1 minute 15 seconds. From this point it was but one horse chasing another, for Patchen passed the first mile fourteen lengths in advance, in 2 minutes 28 seconds, and won the heat very easily under a strong pull in 4 minutes 56 seconds, Butler making a splendid brush up the home-stretch, and coming over the score about three lengths behind.

RECAPITULATION.
